400,000 Nazis May Face Trial as War Criminals

By LYLE C. WILSON

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8.—(BUP)—Trial of 300,000 to 400,000 Germans on charges of criminal wartime actions is expected to follow the master trial of big shot criminals scheduled to begin in Nuernberg next month.

British United Press was given that figure today by a reliable and informed individual. Twenty-four persons already have been named for the master trial which will be conducted by commissioners and prosecutors representing Great Britain, France, the Soviet Union and the United States.

This group includes Hermann Goering, Rudolf Hess and other Nazi stars. Among charges to be included in the indictments is that the Nazi SS and the Gestapo were criminal organizations. It is ex-

Mysterious Trail

Luxurious Yacht Is Hunted As Possible Hitler Hideout

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN

HAMBURG, Sept. 8.—(AP)—A mysterious, handsomely-appointed, 90-foot yacht is being widely sought in the belief that Hitler might be aboard it.

The search, which has covered every islet and inlet of the Schleswig-Holstein coast, got new impetus in recent days as British security police took official cognizance of persistent rumors that Hitler and his deputy Fuehrer, Martin Bormann, were in the Hamburg area in early May.

A recent broadcast reported to have been picked up in Sweden and purporting to come from Bormann declared Hitler was in Germany, alive and in good health.

British investigators have discovered that equipment taken aboard the missing yacht in the weeks just before Germany's collapse included two radio transmitters.

The yacht, described as Diesel-powered and luxurious, is reported by dock workers to have sailed early in May from the small Elbe river port of Gluckstadt, 30 miles northwest of Hamburg. There the trail ends.

For Service, Homes

Two Pleas Made in House On Behalf of Servicemen

OTTAWA, Sept. 8.—(CP)—A plea that encouragement be given servicemen to remain in Canada's permanent armed forces and a hope that a "still broader program" of veterans housing would be announced were expressed in the Commons yesterday by Wing Cmdr. W. N. Benidickson (L.-Kenora-Rainy River) in moving the address in reply to the Speech From the Throne. The address was seconded by Lieut. Leopold Langlois (L.-Gaspe).

Wing Cmdr. Benidickson, 34-year-old peacetime barrister with more than two years overseas administrative service in the air force, said the speech embodied the spirit of "those reforms which the times demand; and if, among us, we cannot ensure that the letter, the detail, of those reforms is made effective, then I suggest with all deference, that we shall be failing at our task".

Of Icelandic descent, the native of Dauphin, Man., whose home is in Winnipeg, expressed concern about the permanent force establishment and said he hoped there would soon be an explicit government statement concerning the matter.

"There are a number of men who, after long service have decided that their special aptitude lies in continued membership in

Prisoners-of-War Moving to Manila

By WILLIAM STEWART

HONG KONG—(Delayed)—(CP)—A large number of prisoners-of-war, including all Canadians and civilian internees held by the Japanese before Hong Kong's liberation, will be evacuated to Manila within a week by the Empress of Australia, peacetime Canadian liner which arrived at Hong Kong Tuesday with 3,000 Air Force personnel.

Arrangements have been made for the Empress to turn around quickly, carrying liberated servicemen and civilians. Hospital cases from Samshuipo prison camp, where the Canadians were held, and Stanley internment camp already have left aboard the hospital ship Oxfordshire and a second hospital ship tied up at Kowloon now is taking the others.

(Arrival at Manila of the first group of 33 Canadians directly from Hong Kong was reported Friday by Col. R. S. Malone, director of public relations, Canadian Army. Col. Malone said the men were in process of being removed from a British hospital ship.)

Australia Budget Cuts Income Tax By 12½ Per Cent

CANBERRA, Sept. 8.—(CP)—A reduction in income tax amounting to approximately 12½ per cent in a full year and a cut in the sales tax were announced by Prime Minister Chifley yesterday when he introduced the budget in the Australian House of Representatives.

Income tax will continue to be deducted at source from salaries and wages.

The budget provides for total expenditure of £492,000,000 ($1,599,000,000), including £360,000,000 for war expenditure. Of the total £340,000,000 will come from taxation and £152,000,000 from loans.

Study Sentences Given to Sailors For VE-Day Riots

OTTAWA, Sept. 8—(CP)—Justice Minister St. Laurent said in the Commons yesterday that the remission branch of his department was making "a very careful and sympathetic" investigation of sentences imposed on naval personnel and others in connection with VE-Day riots at Halifax.

He was replying to John Diefenbaker (PC—Lake Centre) who had asked whether the justice department was considering remitting or reducing some of the "stiffer" penitentiary sentences imposed on naval personnel.

Plan to Disband Returning Units

OTTAWA, Sept. 8.—(CP)—Returning overseas units of the Canadian Army are to be disbanded almost immediately upon arrival at their respective home stations across the Dominion, defence headquarters announced last night. All personnel eligible for and desirous of release and who are returning as part of overseas units will enter the discharge stream of their district depots on completion of disembarkation leave.

Former Empress Liner Is Burning

LIVERPOOL, Sept. 8.—(CP)—The former Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Russia was damaged extensively today by a fire which killed at least two men. The bodies were recovered.

Although firmen reported the blaze under control, the vessel still was burning nine hours after the fire started.

Flames broke out below deck and swept the 16,810-ton vessel which heeled over on her side.

The ship was being refitted at Barrow-in-Furness, 12 miles north of Liverpool, for service as a government transport.

The liner was used to repatriate war prisoners in 1943, but her other wartime activities have not been made public.

National Fire Service detachments from 15 northwest centres fought the fire and had it under control by 7:15 a.m. (London time) and at 9 a.m. fresh crews of firemen took over.

British Columbia Vote on Liquor Question Hinted

VANCOUVER, Sept. 8—(CP)—The Vancouver Sun in a newspage story from Victoria yesterday reported that the British Columbia coalition cabinet is considering a plan to take a plebiscite on the liquor question on Oct. 25, date of the provincial election.

"Government opinion", it said, "more or less coincides with bringing about an administration of liquor laws along lines adopted in Ontario. This would be based on a sale of light wines and beers with meals during meal hours in standard hotels and such other approved premises as shall be designated".

Asks When War Officially Over

OTTAWA, Sept. 8.—(CP)—Rev. E. G. Hansell (SC-Macleod) asked in the Commons yesterday when the formal government announcement would be made that the war was officially over, and said he wanted to know the arrangements for the termination of wartime agreements like mutual aid. Prime Minister Mackenzie King said he would take notice of Mr. Hansell's question and would reply at another time.

Nanking Melting Pot

Hard to Tell in China Just Who Won the War

By GEORGE WANG

Exclusive to The Edmonton Bulletin

NANKING, Sept. 8.—(BUP)—Over 1,000,000 Japanese troops that invaded China were scheduled to surrender to Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek's government tomorrow, but today in Nanking it was still difficult to determine who won the war.

Allied, Japanese, and sulky Chinese puppet troops were all jumbled together in one vast, bewildering melting pot.

At every street corner three men stood shoulder to shoulder—a yellow-clad puppet policeman directing traffic, a khaki-clad Japanese military policeman, and a green-clad Chungking M.P.

Only Few Civilians Are Still Interned

OTTAWA, Sept. 8.—(CP)—Once numbered in the thousands when the Empire stood in peril, the total of civilians internees held in Canadian custody has shrunk to virtually nothing, it was learned today.

Among the few still held are 21 merchant seamen—a mixture of German, Hungarian, Finnish and other nationalities formerly at war with the Allies—who were recently moved from an internment camp 15 miles from Fredericton to a camp at Monteith, Ont.

Eight of them were Germans. Some were captured on the high seas, some on land. It is expected they will eventually be deported.

At its peak, the internment figure stood at 3,883, the bulk—2,394—being internees and European refugees brought to this country from the United Kingdom. Many of them were released months and even years ago.

Canada herself interned 1,489 civilians as persons who might prove dangerous in some way to the national welfare and to prosecution of the war. The legal instrument for this way was the defence of Canada regulations.

Frontier Incident

LONDON, Sept. 8 —(Reuters)—A message from the Athens News Agency received in London last night said shots have been exchanged in a frontier incident between Albanian and Greek troops.

Man's Body Taken From Hanna Dam

HANNA, Se. 8—(CP)—A body on which a blurred registration card was found bearing the last name "Hume" was taken from the CNR dam at Hanna yesterday afternoon after it had been discovered by two Hanna youths. Other papers on the body indicated the man, believed to be about 30, was an overseas veteran of the Canadian Army.

Late last night no one had identified the body, said E. E. Holmes, Hanna undertaker. He thought it had been in the water "a couple of days."

A Mrs. Hume, said to be the man's mother, lives at Hanna, and her husband, employed by the CNR is at present at Kindersley, Sask. It is not known if Mr. Hume has been informed.

Mrs. Hume has been notified, it was said.

Continue Inquiry Into Treatment Of Newspapermen

VANCOUVER, Sept. 8.—(CP)—An army court of inquiry investigating charges of rough handling of newspaper reporters and photographers by army regimental police continued yesterday.

The court is expected to sit again today and a statement is expected over the week-end covering the incident at a railway station shortly before arrival of a train carrying overseas veterans Wednesday night.

Findings of the court will be submitted to Maj.-Gen. F. F. Worthington, general officer commanding in chief, Pacific Command.

Princess Elizabeth May Wed

Hint Romance "Around Corner" For Heir to Throne of Britain

By FRED BACKHOUSE

LONDON, Sept. 8.—(CP)—The private life of youthful Princess Elizabeth has become a subject of public gossip in the surviving courts of Europe, leading to speculation that a romance is around the corner for the heir presumptive to the British throne.

Twice within the last three weeks the name of the fair-haired, attractive princess has been linked with those of foreign princes and each time the rumors have been denied by Buckingham Palace. But since Princess Elizabeth has reached the marriageable age of 19 and is probably the most eligible bride in the world, Britons are expecting many such hints of impending engagements.

The arrival in London Thursday of the Greek regent, Archbishop Damaskinos, lent new color to the latest rumor that the princess would marry 23-year-old Prince Philip of Greece, her second cousin.

PRINCESS ELIZABETH

He is a lieutenant in the Royal Navy.

ENGAGEMENT HINTED

The Athens Monarchist organ, Hellenicon Aema, started this international buzzing a week ago when it said people in Greek royal family circles had hinted at the engagement. The paper added: During his stay in London Archbishop Damaskinos may attend a happy solution which will connect intimately the British and Greek royal houses".

Tall, blond and handsome, the Prince, son of Prince Andrew and Princess Alice (born Mountbatten) spent most of his life in Britain and now serving as aide-de-camp to his uncle, Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten, Allied commander in the Southeast Asia theatre. He also is a cousin of King George of Greece and Princess Elizabeth's aunt, the Duchess of Kent.

Rumors first got busy with Prince Philip's name last April when

Fully-Armed Yanks Occupy All Strategic Points in City

From CP, AP and British UP Dispatches

HEADQUARTERS ALLIED ARMY OF OCCUPATION, TOKYO, Sept. 8.—Tokyo is an armed camp today as thousands of American troops, in full battle order, patrol the streets and occupy every strategic corner in the sprawling city.

Marking the occupation of Tokyo and Korea upwards of 15,000 men of the U.S. First Cavalry Division and other Army units rolled into the bomb-striken capital by jeep and truck as General MacArthur proudly unfurled the Stars and Stripes over the U.S. Embassy, just outside the Imperial Palace walls.

Some 725 miles to the west, Pacific veterans of the Seventh Division splashed ashore from landing craft at Inchon (Jinsen) on the west coast of Korea preparatory to occupying the capital city of Keijo, 25 miles inland, and all southern Korea.

The big guns of nearly 50 warships of Admiral Thomas C. Kinkaid's Seventh Fleet covered the landings, but no resistance was encountered.

Russian forces are occupying northern Korea.

Meat Ration Date Is Expected Soon

OTTAWA, Sept. 8.—(CP)—Canadians have been given most of the details of the government's plan for re-introduction of meat rationing except the effective date, but indications were last night that its beginning possibly would be announced early next week.

The meat rationing announcement, when it comes, will probably be made in a broadcast by Donald Gordon, chairman of the Prices Board, which will supervise the plan.

Indications it would be made soon were seen in a recent prices board request to meat dealers to make immediate application for the blue tokens, to be used in Canada for the first time. They will be used to make "change" on ration coupons.

The new ration will allow every Canadian about two pounds of meat, carcass weight, a week, or about 1 1-3 pounds of actual meat. Carcass weight is meat with the bone left in.

Prices board officials have stressed the fact that the sole factor in deciding on reimposition of meat rationing was so Canada could ship more meat to Britain—where the ration is the lowest in history—and to help feed meat-starved Europe.

Edmonton Airman On Plane Claiming East-West Flight

OTTAWA, Sept. 8.—(CP)—Another candidate for the title of first twin-engined aircraft to make an east-west non-stop Atlantic flight in wartime has been put forward by the RCAF's 168th Heavy Transport Squadron, located at nearby Rockcliffe.

A twin-engined C-47 Dakota of the 168th, which operates a two-way trans-Atlantic service mail route, took off from Prestwick, Scotland, last Aug. 31 and landed at Gander, Nfld., the next day. It was piloted by Sqdn. Ldr. Wes McIntosh of Winnipeg, veteran of 32 Atlantic flights. Other crew members included FO. H. K. Iverson, Edmonton, wireless operator.

City Man Caught Following Escape

JERSEY CITY, N.J., Sept. 8.—(AP)—Four men who escaped from custody at Ellis Island yesterday and swam to Jersey City were apprehended within a few hours by police. Two of the four identified themselves as: Fred Wilson, 21, of Winnipeg, and James Matieu, 43, of Edmonton.

City police had no record of Matieu.

CHICAGO, Sept. 8.—(AP)—The total of strikers idle in the United States mounted yesterday to 110,000, highest in months, as President William Green of the American Federation of Labor declared labor's no-strike pledge ended with Japan's surrender.

Amazed by Weapons

Liberated Canadians Show Great Interest In New Arms

By WILLIAM STEWART

MANILA, Sept. 8.—(CP)—Canadian soldiers liberated from prisoner of war camps find themselves almost completely ignorant of happenings outside their camps in the last three years and among the things they are most eager to know about are the new Allied weapons.

They are amazed by the weapons in the hands of servicemen here and they are surprised to see the American helmet which has become world-famous. The last time they saw American servicemen was before their imprisonment when the U.S. soldiers were still wearing the tin-hat type of helmet.

While the Canadians at Hong Kong were awaiting evacuation to Manila, they spent their time visiting ships in Hong Kong harbor and were particularly interested in the aircraft carriers.

Vessels at Coast Cut Up for Scrap

VANCOUVER, Sept. 8.—(CP)—In three Vancouver shipyards yesterday workmen with acetylene torches cut up for scrap the 345-foot steel hulls of six ships which had been ordered by the British admiralty for war use at a cost of about $12,000,000.

At least two of the vessels, which are transport ferries, were within two weeks of launching when orders to halt work on them came immediately after VJ-Day.

Each hull contains approximately 1,500 tons of steel which may be turned over to the War Assets Corporation for disposal.

Orders have come from the federal government to "burn" for scrap two more transports on the ways at North Van Ship Repairs.

Two o' the ferries already headed for the scrap heap are on the ways at Burrard Drydock Company. Two more ferries are being cut up on the ways at Burrard's north yard.

When the job is done the War Assets Corporation will have 9,000 tons of scrap steel for disposal.

Maximum Prices Cured Pork, Beef Are Established

OTTAWA, Sept. 8—(CP)—Effective Sept. 7, maximum prices on barrelled cured pork and beef are established in a new order announced today by the Prices Board.

The order applies specifically to the wholesale and retail pricing of brine-packed pork and beef in barrels of not less than 200 pounds net weight usually sold to mining, lumbering and construction camps.

Price schedules and mark-ups are defined by zones.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 8.—(AP)—The Japanese surrender papers signed aboard the battleship Missouri were presented to President Truman by War Secretary Stimson yesterday at an informal White House ceremony.

Macdonald Sworn In as N.S. Premier

HALIFAX, Sept. 8.—(CP)—Nova Scotia has a new premier today. He is 55-year-old Angus L. Macdonald, who takes over from retiring Premier A. S. MacMillan. The swearing in ceremony, which saw the entire MacMillan cabinet returned to office, took place at government house before Lieutenant-Governor H. E. Kendall this morning.

There was only one change in the cabinet, and that was the addition of 47-year-old Lt.-Col. Arthur W. Mackenzie as minister of agriculture. He has been deputy minister of agriculture for the last three months.

Premier Macdonald himself fills the post of provincial secretary-treasurer.

The premier and Agriculture Minister Mackenzie are without seats in the house of assembly, but the government takes office with all signs pointing to a provincial election in the not too distant future. The statutory life of the present house expires next year.

Private Funeral Services Sunday For Herman Trelle

INGLEWOOD, Calif., Sept. 8.—(CP)—Private funeral services for Herman William Trelle, 50, five times crowned world wheat king from Wembley, Alta., will be held here Sunday at 10 a.m. Trelle died Sunday last from gunshot wounds and John Gilibert, former foreman of the ranch of which Trelle was manager, has been charged with murder in connection with the shooting.

Rev. C. F. Washburn, Anglican minister and old family friend of the Trelles, will officiate at the services. Only close friends and relatives will attend.

Former Captives Will Find Manila Much Like "Home"

OTTAWA, Sept. 8—(CP)—When prisoners of the Japanese who were freed at Hong Kong walk into the Canadian reception camp at Manila in the next few days they will walk into a home-like atmosphere as mess halls have been named Chateau Frontenac and Fort Garry, a message received here yesterday said. Streets of the camp have been named after outstanding thoroughfares in Quebec and Winnipeg, since most of the repatriates are from these two cities.

Details of Hong Kong Battle Are Revealed for First Time in the same building. They share the same telephone, the same gate, and the same radio equipment.

Hidden four years behind the veils of Japanese secrecy and censorship lay details of the valiant fight staged by the outnumbered defenders of Hong Kong before the British crown colony surrendered Dec. 25, 1941. Now, with release of survivors of the campaign—and nearly four years of filth and torture in Japanese prison camps—the grim story is unfolded. William Stewart, CP war correspondent, in the first composite story of the battle of Hong Kong, depicts the part played by Canadians as described to him by various men who fought there. Stewart's story will be found on Page 3 of today's Bulletin.

I telephoned the Domei office and asked them to send the head of their Nanking bureau to see me. The Japanese agreed, but later asked me to come to their office instead. When I got there I found the Domei correspondent had changed his mind and gone to see me. We never did get together.

Domei's deputy director, bowing profusely and hissing through his false teeth, showed me through his offices. I saw a number of Domei men working in a hot, sunlit room. They wore no shoes and their trousers were patched. I found Lowell Lu, a Chinese correspondent of the Central News Agency, who said he had "taken over" the puppet Central Press.

Upstairs Chinese and Japanese typists and radio operators were working side by side.

JAPS SHOW ANGER

Outside, as my car passed through the streets, puppet police showed both fear and forced pleasure when they saw my Allied uniform. The Japanese MP's invariably stared at me in anger, but they were under orders from Gen. Asuji Okamura to behave themselves.

Chungking's MP's saluted with a smile of comradeship.

There were thousands of Japanese soldiers in the streets, apparently doing nothing. Many still carried their guns with the bayonets fixed, or their long swords.

It was difficult to believe that they were aware of any Japanese plans to surrender.

3 Plead Guilty On Theft Count; Delay Sentence

Harold W. Paul was remanded for sentence until March 7, 1946, while Paul V. Hortie and Alvin J. S. Nelson were each placed on suspended sentence for two years in city police court Friday afternoon. They all pleaded guilty to charges of breaking and entering the premises of Bateman's grocery store in South Edmonton.

Hortie was order to pay a fine of $20 and costs for illegal possession of liquor.

Defence counsels testified that Paul, 17 years old, while having a previous record of convictions and warnings, was the youngest of the trio and was anxious to obtain work on a farm.

GOOD RECORD

Hortie's counsel said that accused had a "good record", and was recently discharged, disabled, from the Canadian Navy after more than three years service. He is 20 years old.

Counsel for 18-year-old Nelson said this was the youth's first offence. An employee of a local delivery service, he was said to have a favorable employment record. Both Nelson and Hortie indicated through counsel their desire to try and rehabilitate themselves through hard work on family farms.

Magistrate A. I. Miller, KC, pointed out that "we must keep in mind the protection of the public." He added that "boys are always repentant when they are caught."

In the Bateman "job" Hortie and Paul did the actual shopbreaking, police said, while Nelson drove a stolen safe from the store in his truck. Stolen was $117 and a quantity of merchandise. The safe, valued at $125, was severely damaged while the door of the store was damaged to the extent of $13.

LUNCH COUNTER

Police added that Paul and Hortie later entered the premises of a lunch counter at 10135 Jasper avenue, taking $89 in currency, and broke into another refreshment establishment at 10063 101 street, stealing nothing, but damaging property.

Police said full restitution had been made.

Armed Burma Japs Clash With British

KANDY, Ceylon, Sept. 8—(Reuters)—Two thousand well-armed but hungry Japanese, the biggest of four groups in Burma refusing to accept surrender, are clashing with British troops as they attempt to force their way across the Shwegyin Chaung river to get at the food in the well-stocked villages to the west. This body, located between the Shwegyin Chaung and the Sitang river, northeast of Rangoon, has made several unsuccessful attacks on British troops since the surrender announcement.

ern Japan also was imminent. More than 50 warships of the American North Pacific Fleet entered Mutsu Bay at the northern tip of the enemy's main home island of Honshu today.

Japanese representatives will sign formal surrender terms aboard Vice Admiral Frank J. Fletcher's flagship Panamint at 10 a.m. Sunday (7 p.m. Saturday, MDT). Soon afterward, occupation forces will land at the Ominato naval base on northern Honshu and on Hokkaido, northernmost of the Japanese home islands.

GIVE SCHEDULE

Radio Toyko said the American schedule also calls for occupation of atomic-bombed Nagasaki Sept. 26 the Sasebo naval base on Sept. 22 and the Kure naval base from Oct. 3 to 13. Other occupation dates were given as Wakayama Sept. 25 and Yokkaichi Oct. 2. Two American Sixth Army officers will leave Tokyo Sunday to arrange for the surrender of Kyoto, ancient capital of Japan, the broadcast said.

South of Japan, nine docile Japanese officers signed documents on Okinawa yesterday unconditionally surrendering 105,000 Japanese army and navy men in 60 Kyukyu islands to Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell, commander of the American 10th Army.

In the long by-passed Marshall islands, a fourth Japanese-held atoll capitulated. The half-starved Japanese garrison of 1,067 troops on Maloelap atoll surrendered. The American flag will be raised formally on the atoll Monday.

BACK TO YOKOHAMA

General MacArthur returned to his headquarters at Yokohama after the ceremony of raising the American flag over the American embassy. Transfer of his headquarters to Tokyo awaited establishment of ample office and living quarters for his staff.

Only 2,500 troops were in Tokyo at the time of the flag-raising ceremony, but the number is expected to approach 15,000 by nightfall.

The American occupation of Tokyo proceeded without untoward incident. Japanese spectators watched the troop columns with interest. Some civilians and officers saluted. Many children waved.

No unfriendly gestures were reported as Gen. MacArthur, shunning all fanfare as a conqueror, officially signalized the occupation of the war-wrecked city with a 10-minute flag raising ceremony.

The Supreme Commander of the Allied powers was stern of visage and firm of voice at the United States embassy grounds—within five minutes drive of Emperor Hirohito's palace—as he ordered:

"Have our country's flag unfurled, and in Tokyo's sun let it wave in its full glory as a symbol of hope for oppressed and as a harbinger of victory for the right".

The general and his men came as the first foreign victors ever to enter the heart of surrendered Japan. In their hour of triumph, they were all business.

Tanks had rolled up to the outskirts. They halted there as Gen. MacArthur chose not to bring them in unless needed, to avoid further damaging Tokyo's streets.

MARKED SIMPLICITY

The raising of the flag over the embassy grounds—rather than over a Japanese building such as the Diet, in the gesture of an arrogant conqueror—was impressive in its simplicity. Gen. MacArthur arrived shortly before the 11 a.m. ceremony (8 p.m. MDT, Friday) after motoring from Yokohama.

No Japanese were present at the ceremony.

The first reconnaissance groups entered around 7 a.m. (4 p.m. MDT, Friday) and set up a guard at the Imperial Hotel, to serve for the time being as general headquarters.

the armed forces", he said. "They were volunteers at the outset of the war, but today they would like to become members of the relatively large permanent services which Canada is expected to maintain after the war, or else, perhaps, contribute to an international peace force.

"To the best of my knowledge, two at least of the services are not making it possible for men so minded, to remain in the services; I suspect that the cream of the crop, from a military point of view, is being lost through this oversight".

NO IDENTIFICATION

Wing Cmdr. Benidickson did not identify the two services.

He also asked that the government expedite its provisions for the housing of veterans.

"We know that some constructive action is under way in cities, and we are hopeful that a still broader program will be announced. We are hopeful that control over housing, the major emergency which Canada faces today, may be vested in one central agency and not scattered on a shared-responsibility basis, among a number of departments.

"We could have an assurance that the benefits of the wartime housing policy would not be concentrated in the cities, but would be dispersed as well among the small towns, where overcrowding is relatively as great. I repeat that it is my hope and expectation that a solution will be indicated when the government has an opportunity to outline its policy to this house."

CITES IMPORTANCE

He spoke of Canada's growing importance as a world power and her growing responsibility as such.

"Whether we like it or not, we are faced with the facts that our achievements during this war—by our armed services, by our economic administrators, by our diplomatic representatives, by our scientific forces—have lifted us far beyond the stature of a northern adjunct of the United States or a westward dependency of Great Britain."

He said Canada as a great nation had obligations. "In brief, we must share with other nations, with those which have been allied with us but upon which the war has created deep-seated scars which will be longer in healing than it will take any one of us to obtain the new car or the new radio we now have our eye on.

"We must share with them, and give them whatever assistance a free nation can in re-creating other free nations with whom we can live at peace."

SPEAKS IN FRENCH

Lieut. Langlois, making part of his speech in French and part in English, said he hoped the government soon will take steps to give Canada a national anthem as well as a distinctive Canadian flag. When this was done possibly those in charge of education in the provinces would agree to give Canada uniform Canadian history.

The Speech from the Throne had said that parliament would be asked to approve a design for a Canadian flag. He hoped this would be followed by action with respect to a national anthem.

Edmonton Visitor Hits Local Clime

The famous raconteur and exaggerator, Baron Munchausen, fades into insignificance before the skyscraper fabrications of "Lefty" Miller, one-time pitcher for the St. Louis Cardinals, and now advance agent for Zazu Pitts' show "Ramshackle Inn."

The play was seen here in the winter of 1944, and as a Broadway legitimate stage production, played at the Empire Theatre for four nights, the first such production to reach Edmonton in three years. Temperatures on the nights of production were a comfortable 40 degrees above.

Miller, in a statement to a Pittsburgh columnist described Edmonton weather as "in the dead of winter when it was 42 below," adding, "it was the first legitimate show in that frozen town in 15 years."

Miller's statements led the columnist to further write: "We packed them in the first two nights but dropped off a bit the next two when temperatures dropped to 60 below." Attendance at all performances aggregated enough to about fill the theatre once.

BACK TO CIVVIES.—Lt. (SB) A. M. Edwardson, RCNVR, security intelligence officer for the Royal Canadian Navy at Vancouver for the last six months, has returned to Edmonton on demobilization leave and will rejoin the city police department after his discharge from the service. He is a son of Mr. and Mrs. George Edwardson, of Prince Rupert and Vancouver, formerly of Edmonton. His wife is the former Betty Clough, daughter of Capt. Canon C. F. A. Clough, Edmonton Garrison chaplain, and they have twin four-month-old sons, Eric and Richard. The 24-year-old officer was a detective-clerk and constable in Edmonton 1940-42 before enlisting as a probationary writer. He served for several months at sea in the armed merchant cruiser HMCS Prince David in the Aleutians before being transferred to the security intelligence branch as a rating in 1943. He was promoted to sub-lieutenant a year later. Both Lieut. Edwardson and his wife were noted swimmers.

400,000 Nazis May Face Trial On War Crimes

pected that this charge will be proved adequately during the Nuernberg proceedings.

SUMMARY ACTION

Thereafter the trial of small fry members of those outlawed outfits would be largely matters of summary procedure, the British United Press was informed. The SS and Gestapo members will make up a large part of the 300,000 to 400,000 persons whose trial and punishment is forecast.

Some members of these criminal organizations properly will escape punishment, the British United Press was informed, on grounds that they were forced into membership and coerced into obedience.

The Nuernberg master trial is expected to be the last joint prosecution by the four powers. The thousands of additional individuals would be tried by local courts of various kinds, including military courts and courts of liberated states.

BORMAN MISSING

The 24 master trial defendants, if they are present for the event, almost unquestionably will be executed, the British United Press was informed. One still is missing. Martin Bormann, Adolf Hitler's secretary, has not been accounted for. Another, Goering, is ill and may not live long. Goering has been suffering heart attacks.

The fat fellow was a drug addict. His supply of narcotics was reduced and he now is reported cured. If it were shown that depriving him of drugs endangered his life there would be considerable sentiment among senior members of the trial group to give him all he needed so that he might live to die dishonorably if convicted.

(London reports said not only that Goering has been cured of his drug habit but that he is in perfect health for his trial).

PERVERTS, DRUG ADDICTS

The German prisoners were described as an unprepossessing lot, some sexually perverted and others accustomed to the habitual use of drugs. The proof against them is so complete, conclusive and unanswerable as to astonish even officials who knew the men were guilty but foresaw some technical difficulties in obtaining satisfactory proof.

The four powers are determined to make an "indisputable record" in the master trial. It will be of such detailed and overwhelming nature as to make it impossible 10 or 20 or 30 years from now for anyone to start a propaganda campaign attempting to show that the trials were unfair.

Convicted defendants at the master trial probably will be hanged. Others may also be executed but it is not unlikely that the 300,000 to 400,000 additional trials now foreseen will much more often end in prison or forced labor sentences. Anyway, that is a matter for local courts.

STAFF IS PROBLEM

In deciding to indict the entire SS and Gestapo as criminal organizations, the four powers have avoided so far any decision on the German general saff. It is understood that military men generally oppose blanket indictment of the staff as such although acknowledging that some or many staff officers should be punished.

Authentic Record

Evidence of Jap Brutalities Is Gathered from Captives

By CHARLES A. GRUMICH

SINGAPORE, Sept. 8.—(AP)—Administrative personnel among the newly-liberated prisoners-of-war here are completing exhaustive dossiers indicting their former Japanese guards of almost unbelievable physical cruelties and atrocities.

A long list of crimes, including brutal killings, are being documented with names and dates as an authentic record against the individual Japanese.

While two Japanese soldiers man the sentrybox at the gates giving unanswered salutes to passersby, the administrators inside the Sime Road internment camp prepare the evidence; it chiefly concerns an alleged spy plot by prisoners in Changi jail, and Japanese retaliations.

CAPTIVES SEGREGATED

The Japanese inquisition started Oct. 10, 1943, when 57 prisoners of war were segregated. The trial ended only a week ago, when the Japanese knew their end was near.

The Japanese accused the prisoners of maintaining a spy organization inside the Changi walls to stir Malaya residents to sabotage and "anti-Japanese feeling."

They charged the alleged spy ring had financial backing from outside and communicated by radio-telephonic instruments. The released prisoners say the charges were false, but that they actually did obtain outside funds to supplement the Japanese starvation diet with blackmarket purchases.

Screams came from the torture chambers during "interrogations" as a result of beatings with iron bars, brass rods, bamboo sticks, wet knotted ropes, belts with buckles and pistol butts. These were part of the ordinary punishment, as distinguished from special brutalities.

BEATINGS FATAL

Victims sometimes were strung up or forced to kneel on sharp pieces of wood or iron. One who died had been interrogated and beaten intermittently for more than 144 hours.

There were water tortures and burnings with cigarettes on the most sensitive parts of the body, according to documented evidence. Some Asiatics were soaked in gasoline and burned as human torches. There also was a special shock disintegration of the nerves and physique.

The Japanese used their victims for ju-jitsu practice. Some were advised to write farewell letters and all arrangements were made for their executions. Then it was called off and threats were made against their families. One committed suicide, but was subjected to interrogation even while dying.

Among the 57 prisoners of war segregated for nearly two years, 12 died of sickness resulting directly from ill treatment and one was executed.

Three others died in solitary confinement without medical attention.

Hint Romance Around Corner For Princess

Princess Elizabeth celebrated her 19th birthday and it was disclosed he had spent several of his leaves at Windsor Castle.

Buckingham Palace temporarily halted speculation about Philip by saying it "knew nothing about" the report from Greece.

NO FLAT DENIAL

This announcement, however, was notably different from the palace's flat "official denial" 14 days before to the suggestion published in Brussels that Prince Charles, 41-year-old Prince Regent of Belgium, was to marry "an English princess."

The story, printed by the responsible Roman Catholic newspaper, La Libre Belgique, did not name Princess Elizabeth, but no one was in any doubt as to who was meant. At the time Prince Charles had just returned from "a private visit" to London.

Even when she was only 17 London newspapers reported that on her 18th birthday Princess Elizabeth would become engaged to one of the young Guards officers with whom she danced at informal wartime parties held at Windsor Castle. The Duke of Rutland and the Earl of Euston, both now 26, were mentioned.

IGNORED BY PRESS

The present outbreak of rumors got little attention from the British press apart from brief mention of the reports and denials. However one or two newspapers expressed resentment at the way the continent is making free with the name of the elder princess at the moment when she is training for the throne.

A columnist in the Evening Star wrote: "One thing most people hope is that the Princess will marry for love as her parents did. Nobody nowadays would welcome a marriage to some young princeling just for the sake of finding a royal bridegroom to be the eventual Prince Consort."

brigadiers, major generals and even lieutenant generals.

A couple of Canadian officers who spent the duration at Samshuipo camp in Hong Kong without the opportunity to gain promotion discovered they now were outranked by their wives in the CWAC. The etiquette to be observed when they meet their wives in Canada was giving them some food for thought.

For the Canadians at Samshuipo, one of the most cheering features of their liberation was the presence of the Canadian anti-aircraft cruiser Prince Robert which was tied up at the Kowloon dock and turned over all its facilities to the prisoners.

LOOK YOUNGER FAST

Those who visited the ship, whose bar was opened wide to them, got their first square meal since they were locked up. The effect of good food on the prisoner's appearances was something to marvel at and within a few days the men lost many traces of their exhausting ordeal and looked two or three years younger.

A group of Canadians now at No. 29 replacement depot here have received their first mail dated mid-August and written on the blue airmail forms which get the speediest delivery.

Until the Canadians arrive at their homes, mail will be the most important thing in their lives, probably exceeding in value even the food and comforts of the reception camp.

By WILLIAM STEWART

MANILA, Sept. 8.—(CP)—The melancholy story of the fall of Hong Kong on Christmas Day, 1941, is gradually being told by Canadians who aided in the attempt to halt the Japanese onslaught and who now have been released from prisoner-of-war camps.

As the Japanese threat began to unfold in the Pacific, members of the Winnipeg Grenadiers and the Royal Rifles of Quebec were sent to bolster the Hong Kong garrison of British and Indian troops, Hong Kong volunteers and other miscellaneous groups.

All naval units of any importance had been transferred south to Malaya. Apart from the fact that Hong Kong's defensive system was designed primarily against attack from the sea, the Canadians had barely got into position when the Japanese attacked. The Canadians, furthermore, generally were unfamiliar with the hilly island, which is 32 miles in circumference.

Men with whom the Canadians fought 10 days after the failure to hold the Japanese at the Shumshum river on the mainland included the 2nd battalion of the Royal Scots, the 1st battalion of the Middlesex Regiment, a battalion of Punjabs, a battalion of Rajuts, groups of Hong Kong defence volunteers, some Royal Engineers and some shore-based naval personnel and dockyard defence units. Altogether they made up a garrison of 14,000.

Against them the Japanese employed up to two divisions (more than 30,000 men), supported by artillery firing across the Hong Kong harbor. Artillery accuracy may have been helped by fifth columnists on the island. The battle-inexperienced Canadians could hardly distinguish the Chinese from the Japanese.

ARRIVED NOVEMBER 16

The Canadian forces reached Hong Kong Nov. 16 aboard the transport Awatea, with one company of the Royal Rifles in the former liner Prince Robert, now an anti-aircraft cruiser with naval liberation forces which sailed into Hong Kong last week.

The Royal Rifles had previously been in Newfoundland and Saint John, N.B., while the Grenadiers had spent several months in the West Indies. There were 1,972 officers and men and two nurses in the force which sailed from Vancouver Oct. 27.

(It was announced from Ottawa that the force consisted of 1,985.)

Brig. J. K. Lawson of London, Ont., was in command, with Col. Pat Hennessey of Ottawa acting senior administrative officer. Lt.-Col. J. L. R. Sutcliffe of Winnipeg commanded the Grenadiers and Lt.-Col. W. J. Home of Quebec commanded the Royal Rifles.

COMPOSITION OF FORCE

The force included medical and dental groups, signallers, army service corps, ordnance, postal and provost personnel. Some of the Canadian transport vehicles, travelling in another ship, didn't reach the force.

The day after their arrival the Canadians marched to the outskirts of Kowloon and into the Samshuipo military camp which, after the fall of Hong Kong, was turned by the Japanese into a prisoner-of-war camp.

Although the Canadians started 48-hour exercises in manning Hong Kong defence positions about Dec. 1, and had made tours of the island by road and boat, It was not until Sunday, Dec. 7 that they moved across the harbor from Kowloon to their battle positions.

ISLAND BRIGADE

The two battalions at first became part of an island brigade commanded by Brig. Lawson, later killed in action. The brigade included a Middlesex battalion, stationed in prepared positions around the Hong Kong shoreline, and some volunteers.

Coastal defence guns were manned by Hong Kong and Singapore artillery units. The Royal Rifles went into the eastern positions and the Grenadiers into the western.

Besides rifles and Bren guns, the Canadians, some of whom were wearing battle dress, had two-and three inch mortars with considerable ammunition. Borrowed vehicles, manned at first by Chinese drivers and later by Canadians, were put to use.

On the island was the China command headquarters, headed by Maj.-Gen. C. N. Maltby whb had come to Hong Kong a couple of months earlier.

JAPANESE STRIKE

The Japanese struck across the Shumshum river border, just after the Canadians settled in Hong Kong. The Japs had been in their position less than 20 miles from Kowloon since 1938 and had plenty of time to plan their attack.

The Kaitak airfield east of Kowloon was attacked by 30 Japanese fighters at 8 a.m. Dec. 8 and after the raid, one Wildbeeste, an old style aircraft, was the only British plane serviceable. A proposal that the single plane be used for a token raid was rejected.

The Samshuipo barracks were bombed and some among the Canadian rear parties there became the first casualties of the campaign. Two of the three British First-Great-War destroyers left the harbor that night for Singapore, with some smaller craft.

As air attacks were carried out, the Japanese sent two columns across the Shumshum river toward the lines manned by the Royal Scots, Punjabs and Rajputs, bolstered by Hong Kong defence volunteers.

HELD KEY POSITION

The Scottish held the key position of the Shingmun redoubt and on the night of Dec. 9-10, a company of the Grenadiers commanded by Capt. A. S. Bowman of Winnipeg crossed to the mainland to provide close support. As it turned out, the Grenadier company covered the withdrawal.

Shingmun fell the same night when the Japanese advanced with armored spearheads. The mainland defenders started to fall back toward the harbor. By the morning of Dec. 13 the mainland had been evacuated, with the troops crossing to Hong Kong in whatever craft they were able to board.

Japanese shells were dropping now into the waterfront area of Hong Kong and some accurate fire was directed at the concrete positions on the island even before the Rajputs, last troops to leave the mainland, crossed to the island.

DEFENCES REORGANIZED

During the three-day evacuation period the island defences were reorganized with the Canadian battalions being placed in different brigades. The eastern brigade was made up of the Royal Rifles, Rajputs, elements of the Middlesex battalion and some volunteers. The western brigade, commanded by Brig. Lawson comprised the Grenadiers, the Scots, Punjabs and also some Middlesex men and some volunteers.

The first Japanese move toward Hong Kong came the night of Dec. 15-16 following a heavy bombardment from the Kowloon area. It was a dark night and the Japanese crossing in boats was made in the northern area of the channel near the positions occupied, by a platoon of the Royal Rifles.

Whether the Japanese attempt was a reconnaissance-in-strength, a diversion or a full-fledged attack was not known definitely but it was beaten off, though some of the enemy worked their way into the hills. From then on there was sniping into the defence positions.

DEFENDERS STRUNG OUT

As the Japanese crossed again in strength on the night of Dec. 18-19 the Hong Kong defenders were strung out, with the Junjabs occupying the western end of the island, which includes the city of Victoria. The Scots were in the central positions on the northern side and the Rajputs to the east and northeast. There were no perimeter positions on the north face of the island occupied by the Canadians.

The real battle of Hong Kong lasted a week after the Japanese landing in the Taikoo dock area, at Quarry Bay and at North Point, which was enveloped in heavy smoke from oil fires started by shelling. By midnight the Japanese, wearing rubber-soled sneakers, had reached the sanatorium in a gap between Mount Parker and Mount Butler, having cut through the Rajput positions in the darkness.

Southeast of the Indians' positions, a Royal Rifles company suddenly came under rifle fire from a position overlooking their defences in the Lei Mun gap. The company fell back after carrying out counter-attacks in which casualties were suffered.

ENGAGED JAPANESE

The Japanese worked up toward the top of the 1,500-foot Mount Parker looking down on the north-eastern channel and dominating the hills around. Meanwhile, platoons of Grendadiers engaged the Japanese pushing southwest in the area of Jardines lookout, a feature due west of Mount Parker.

Fatal casualties included Lieuts. G. A. Birkett and C. D. French, both of Winnipeg.

A Grenadier company commanded by Maj. A. B. Gresham of Winnipeg was ordered to a position in little Hong Kong on the southern side of the island and came under personal command of Brig. Lawson. Moving forward to meet the Japanese the company was ambushed and with few exceptions every member was killed or captured. Both the company commander and the second in command, Capt. L. T. Tarbuth of Winnipeg were killed. Lieut. O. W. McKillop of Portage La Prairie was wounded and died a week later.

Lieuts. W. V. Mitchell and F. L. Mitchell of Winnipeg were missing after the action. Both are presumed dead.

In their infiltrating advance the Japanese crawled along concrete water troughs winding around the hills for catchment purposes and by dawn, Brig. Lawson's brigade headquarters area was under direct attack.

ROYAL RIFLES FAIL

At 7 o'clock in the morning of Dec. 19 the Japs held the Jardines lookout and Mount Parker in strength and an attempt by the Royal Rifles to clear Mount Parker failed.

Some Japanese had penetrated by then to the Wong Nei Chang gap, better than half way across the island and their plan to cut the island defences in two became clear.

Brig. Lawson was killed about 10 o'clock, evidently while arranging for withdrawal of his headquarters group from Wong Nei Chang.

During the morning of Dec. 19, the eastern force started to evacuate the area of Tai Tam, Nicholson Dagular and Obelisk Hill toward the general line of Notting Hill, Sugar Loaf Stone Hill and Stanley View. Pillboxes and gun positions had to be abandoned and by dark a new line was formed.

On the left a composite company commanded by Maj. Ernie Hodkinson of Winnipeg moved east to reinforce in the Wong Nei Chang area and had to fight its way there. There were casualties from shelling and an attack was carried out against the Japanese in the police station building. Maj. Hodkinson was wounded but has recovered.

EXTEND INFILTRATION

Infiltration now extended toward Repulse Bay on the south side of Hong Kong and by nightfall the island has been cut in two. Orders to Col. Sutcliffe and the Grendadiers came direct from China command headquarters in underground positions above the naval dockyard at Victoria.

Sir Mark Young, governor of Hong Kong, visited Col. Sutcliffe before dusk on the 19th and still displayed good spirits.

A Grenadier company moving out from position at Lokfulham to Wan Chai gap and toward Wong Nei Chang collected troops from scattered positions but came under attack and retired with heavy casualties.

A Royal Rifles company was ordered to move along the road west of Stanley Mound toward Repulse Bay, with the object of breaking through to the western brigade forces, while a second company travelled a few hundred yards inland from the southern coast in the Violet Hill area.

The Japanese were found to be holding a spur position overlooking the bay but the company travelling along the road under command of Maj. C. A. Young of Quebec reached Repulse Bay hotel which was full of civilians, and mopped up the Japanese in the hotel garage. However, the company couldn't get beyond the hotel.

INFLICTED CASUALTIES

The company commanded by Maj. M. A. Parker of Quebec moved along the east slopes of Violet Hill, along the water catchment troughs and inflicted a number of casualties on a Japanese mountain battery caught in the act of unlimbering their guns.

Parker's company was engaged immediately by Japanese forces high on Violet Hill, and was forced to pull back to Stanley View.

A force of the Royal Rifles under Maj. T. G. Macaulay of Quebec, and some Hong Kong volunteers, attempted to push through the enemy positions around the Tai Tam Tuk reservoir in the hope of joining up with the western force troops at Wong Nei Chang. Again there was no artillery support and progress was impossible.

Maj. Macaulay was wounded and evacuated and Lieut. W. S. Fry of Montreal was killed by a sniper. By the night of the 21st Maj. Young's company was able to infiltrate the enemy ranks and made its way to Repulse Bay on the Wong Nei Chang road. That was the nearest they came to a junction with the western brigade.

JAPANESE REPULSED

The Japanese attacks against Maj. Bishop's company holding the east flank, meanwhile, had been repulsed.

Remnants of a Grenadiers headquarters company surrendered at Wong Nei Chang after having been encircled for three days. At the time they were commanded by Lieut. T. A. Blackwood of Saskatoon who had taken over when Lieut. R. W. Phillip, Winnipeg, was wounded. Lieut. Phillip had replaced Bowman when he was killed.

Seven unwounded men who were left of a headquarters company were without ammunition. Remnants of the Grenadiers were reorganized by Maj. G. Trist, Winnipeg, second in command, who also took under his command a platoon of Royal Engineers. But Dec. 21 was spent under heavy shelling and bombardment of five-inch Japanese mortars.

The Grenadiers were holding their positions on Mount Cameron—where the Japanese now have a memorial to their men who died in winning the 1941 victory of Hong Kong — and turned back attacks from the Wong Nei Chang area. On the 22nd, the Grenadiers had to retire from the Wan Chai gap when a company suddenly came under machine-gun fire and the Japanese broke into the Grenadier lines.

The withdrawal was covered by Capt. A. W. Prendergast, Winnipeg, with a machine-gun section.

Maj. Young's company of Rifles at Repulse Bay was cut off.

A company under Maj. E. E. Denison of Danville, Que., held its position in the area of Stanley Mound during the day with Parker's company just east. Elements of a headquarters company remained on Notting Hill and battalion headquarters at Stone Hill.

GRENADIERS RETREAT

On the following day the Grenadiers retired still farther to Wanchai gap and a line running southwest to Aberdeen which was reoccupied by a force under Maj. J. A. Bailie, Winnipeg.

Defence groups now were being torn wider and wider apart and the troops were subjected to sniping, mortar bombing and shelling by day and infiltration by night.

MISSING—Lt. W. B. Ashbridge, RCNVR, only son of Mr. and Mrs. James Ashbridge, 9804 88 avenue, who has been reported missing after being shot down on Aug. 18 during a raid on Honshu Island by planes from the British aircraft carrier Formidable. Information forwarded to his parents is that little hope is held out for his survival. Brother officers described him as the outstanding fighter pilot on the big carrier. Born in England 21 years ago he came to Canada with his parents in 1926 and later attended Strathcona high school where he won the Griesdorf trophy as an outstanding student. He enlisted in the RCNVR three years ago and was on loan to the fleet air arm of the Royal Navy when shot down.

Young's Rifles company was ordered back to Stanley from the Repulse Bay area but was cut off. Members of the company tried to get to Stanley independently to rejoin the battalion.

Finding it impossible to reach Stanley, Young and group 34 boarded a small boat and rowed out to a lone British destroyer which was aground offshore and spent the night there. Lieut. Colin Blaver, Toronto, swam across the bay and reached Stone Hill safely. Lieut. John O'Greevy, Quebec, also got through.

Meantime, Denison's company held off Japanese attempts on Stanley Mound.

ORDERED TO RETIRE

In the afternoon, the Rifles were ordered to retire south to Stanley peninsula for a last stand with Denison's company left behind on high ground at Cheongham Kok.

The Japanese attacked Mount Cameron next day and a section led by Lieut. L. B. Corrigan of Swift Current, Sask., held off attempts at the foot of the west slope. A group headed by Lieut. W. F. Nugent, Lindsay, Ont., held the Japanese at Bennetts Hill as Bailie's company position at Aberdeen was penetrated.

On the 24th the Rifles were relieved by Hong Kong volunteers and Middlesex and retired to Stanley Fort. Shortly after midnight the Rifles were ordered to a position overlooking Stanley village to stave off a reported Jap breakthrough attempt. Denison's company held on at Cheong Ham Kok.

Day attacks were carried out by companies of Rifles but lack of artillery support made them hopeless. One company lost 26 men killed and 75 wounded.

A general armistice was declared at 3 p.m. on a bloody Christmas Day but the Rifles and British and Indian troops continued to receive heavy shelling.

ORDERED TO ATTACK

At 5 p.m. a reorganized company led by Capt. Charlie Price, Quebec, was ordered to attack in the area of Stanley Road. It made no progress. Six men were killed and 12 wounded.

A car flying a large white flag appeared with a Lieutenant-Colonel of Royal Engineers who brought word of the end of the fight.

The Grenadiers fought Christmas Day, attacking in an attempt to support Bailie's company at Aberdeen. There was an armistice to permit civilans to leave Repulse Bay hotel during the day but the Japanese shelling was uninterrupted and machine-guns were trained on the Grenadiers' battalion headquarters.

The Grenadiers moved from Wan Chai gap to Gough. Col. Sutcliffe, who survived the campaign but died April 6, 1942, of illness, was ordered to brigade headquarters and sent back word that hostilities were over.

Bailie's company at Aberdeen couldn't be notified until later but held its position until the end.

Canadian Citizenship

It is pleasing to learn, through the Speech from the Throne, that Canada at long last is to take definite steps to clarify Canadian citizenship and to choose some official design for a distinctive Canadian flag.

These are not matters of great national moment except as they affect the psychology of the public. But since the public does appear to suffer from the implied deficiencies, that is to say, from an inferiority complex built up out of these deficiencies, it is important that the obscurities surrounding citizenship and the vagueness concerning our national flag be speedily and finally rectified.

It is undoubtedly galling to national pride when statistics clerks and census enumerators refuse to accept the term "Canadian" as describing the nationality of a person born in this country or whose forbears have been born in this country for one or more generations.

It is ridiculous that we should have two kinds of Canadian citizenship—one conferred by birth and the other by naturalization, each receiving different treatment from foreign immigration officers.

It is intolerable that citizenship should confer on some the right to vote and no responsibility for military service as in the case of Mennonites and Hutterites and should confer on others no right to vote but a responsibility for military service, as in the case of reserve Indians.

There should be one citizenship across the country with a single set of privileges and a single set of obligations.

So far as a distinctive flag is concerned, it is well for our national self-respect that we should have one—although the Union Jack has symbolized almost everything we have to be proud of.

There is only one point to be stressed in connection with a national flag. And that is that amateur heralds should not be turned loose to make a racial biography of it, nor a mixed botanical garden.

The maple leaf, for instance, is not a sound national symbol because there are many places in Canada where the maple grows only with difficulty. Nor does the fleur-de-lys properly represent the Canadian of French origin. The fleur-de-lys never symbolized France as a nation. It was a purely royal device used on the armorial bearings of the kings of France from 1147 to 1830.

Surely the heraldic symbols of an institution which the French themselves have repudiated have no place in the heraldry of this country.

If we are to have a distinctive flag, then, it should be simple, colorful and impressive. It should stand for Canada alone, not for all the racial streams that have flowed into the river of our race.

After Recreation Week

Edmonton people are enjoying and presumably profiting by the celebration of Recreation Week. They are taking advantage of the excellent programs planned for their pleasure.

But there is always the danger that Recreation Week will pass off in a blaze of public entertainment and then be forgotten. If it does, the entire purpose of the project will be defeated.

Recreation Week was devised by its capable creators not to give Edmonton people an exciting and interesting seven days but to impress upon their minds and stimulate their concern in the profitable use of leisure hours, not just for a week, but as a permanent part of Edmonton's community life.

There are a great many essential matters, in this connection, that cannot possibly march forward without strong popular support. Supervised playgrounds, for instance, are an absolute necessity in Edmonton if children are going to have safe and instructive places to play. There are only three such playgrounds in this city and there should be at least twenty. More than thirty sites have been selected for this purpose by the Town Planning Commission.

Now the money to develop these essential supervised playgrounds must come from somewhere. If they are to be developed at all, the public must be brought to appreciate their value and be prepared to foot the relatively small cost involved.

It was for this and similar purposes that Recreation Week was conceived. The citizens are enjoying this week. They should begin now to seriously consider the implications of it, holding the thought constantly in mind that the intellectual and moral pattern of any community is shaped, not so much by its work, but by what it does with its leisure hours.

V

The Peace Plan

Parliament will, as a matter of course, have to deal at the present session with the Charter drawn up at the San Francisco conference. It can be approved or rejected. It cannot be amended by action of a single country. There should, and doubtless will be, a full and clarifying discussion of the whole set-up, but in the end the vote will be for or against. Amendment, if desired, will have to come later and on motion of a substantial number of the United Nations.

The Charter was forged by joint effort of delegates representing all the Allied powers. Canada's delegates were chosen from the three major political groups in parliament. The presumption therefore is that the verdict will be for approval, and that is undoubtedly the hope of the great majority of our people.

Not that the Charter is flawless or incapable of improvement. No human document is. But the plan embodied in it came out of the melting pot of conference discussion, and has been submitted by the conference as a workable arrangement to prevent the nations drifting into another war. It could have no stronger recommendation to acceptance.

Delays are proverbially dangerous where a good purpose is at stake. There could be no better purpose than that which the Charter is intended to ensure, the preservation of order and friendship among the nations. The sooner these get organized to curb aggression, prevent friction and squelch threatening outbreaks, the better. There is a possibility that the new League may gain statutory approval of the required number of nations by the end of the year. Canada's parliament should do its part to bring this about.

Vice Admiral McCain died suddenly in California. He will be widely remembered for his declaration that the Japanese war lords have not yet been beaten decisively enough to guarantee their future behaviour. The inference that they may some time start trouble again seems fanciful at present. But a point worth noting is that the Japanese army was not smashed in broad scale operations. The bulk of it is in China and the states to the south, and is laying down arms in obedience to the orders of the Emperor, not because it was incapable of making further resistance.

Strange Attack on Cordell Hull

By B. T. RICHARDSON

WASHINGTON.—In the lengthy reports on the Pearl Harbor disaster, issued by the U.S. army and navy, no stranger passages are found than those in the army report which criticized Cordell Hull, the secretary of state. The offence with which Mr. Hull is charged is that he failed to appease the Japanese envoys, Nomura and Kurusu, in order to purchase time for the U.S. generals and admirals to get ready for war.

The report was written by three retired generals of the U.S. army. This revealing sidelight on the judgment of the generals upon the situation leading up to Dec. 7, 1941, brought immediate and vigorous disagreement from Henry L. Stimson, secretary of war, whose long career included a period as secretary of state. When his attention was called to the criticism of Mr. Hull, at his press conference, President Truman associated himself strongly with Mr. Stimson's disclaimer. Mr. Hull himself objected.

The army board which wrote the report on Pearl Harbor consisted of Generals George Grunert, Henry D. Russell and Walter B. Frank. They are unknown outside the United States. They reached the following conclusion among others:

"The action of the Secretary of State in delivering the counter-proposals of Nov. 26, 1941, was used by the Japanese as the signal to begin the war by the attack on Pearl Harbor. To the extent that it hastened such attack it was in conflict with the efforts of the War and Navy departments to gain time for preparations for war." Then they added: "However, war with Japan was inevitable and imminent because of irreconcilable disagreements between the Japanese empire and the American government."

The U.S. navy board of inquiry frankly recognized that war was inevitable, and made no mention of bargaining for time. It reported:

"That the Japanese policy in the Far East was one of aggression had been well known for many years. The program of expansion, which envisaged Japan as the dominating power in the Western Pacific, was in direct conflict with the policies of the United States and Great Britain, and opposed to agreements established by treaty."

References by the army board and by the navy board, that war was inevitable, that Japan's policies were in "direct conflict" with United States and Great Britain, will strengthen the common American belief that United States was the victim of a calculated and stealthy blow by the Japanese. On the other hand, the contention that Roosevelt-Hull policies brought the war, has been shared by enemy propaganda agencies and by extreme nationalists and their newspapers in the United States.

The facts appearing in the two Pearl Harbor reports and from other sources show that, at the instigation of the Japs, the state department opened negotiations to settle differences with Japan in April, 1941. These negotiations dragged on; the crisis deepened. One of the key documents relied upon in the army report in recounting this aspect of the Pearl Harbor story was Mr. Stimson's private diary of events in Washington. The President, said the army report, had been very careful to be sure that the United States did nothing that could be considered an overt act.

On Nov. 25, 1941, the "war council" of top officials in Washington met. Mr. Hull read a note he proposed to hand to the Japs. It would have asked for a three-months' truce. The Stimson diary noted:

"It adequately safeguarded all our interests, I thought, secured it, but I don't think that there is any chance of the Japanese accepting it because it was so drastic".

At noon that day, they all met at the White House, and discussed the situation for 1½ hours. Mr. Roosevelt, the Stimson diary recorded, "brought up the event that we were likely to be attacked perhaps as soon as, perhaps next Monday". That would have been Dec. 1, 1941. From the context, however, it is clear the Washington officials were thinking of Guam and the Philippines, not Pearl Harbor. The next day, the diary continued: "Hull told me over the telephone this morning that he had about made up his mind not to make the proposition that Knox and I had passed on the other day (the 25th) to the Japanese, but to kick the whole thing over and tell them that he had no other proposal at all". Mr. Hull then, the same day, gave the Jap envoys a note containing "ten points" which, the army inquiry decided, the Japs took as an ultimatum. It was, according to Ambassador Grew's diary, the document that touched the button that started the war.

Mr. Hull has promptly denied that this note of Nov. 27 was in any sense an ultimatum. Its contents were made public on the day Pearl Harbor was attacked. The ten points were that a multilateral non-aggression pact be worked out in the Pacific, that the territorial integrity of French Indo-China be respected that Japan would withdraw forces from China, that only the National government of China should be recognized, and extra-territorial rights in China be renounced, that United States and Japan should conclude a reciprocal trade treaty with the U.S. putting raw silk on its free list, that each country should unfreeze funds of the other, that currencies should be stabilized, and that both should work for peace in the Pacific and encourage other countries to help in that task.

Of this note, Mr. Grew wrote in his published diary that it offered Japan "practically everything she has obstensibly been fighting for." But Japan was bent on military conquest. For ten days Mr. Hull waited for the Jap answer in Washington. It came on Dec. 7, 1941. The envoys met Mr. Hull at 2:20 p.m. and presented a long reply, expressing regret that it would be impossible to reach an agreement by further negotiation. During those ten days, a powerful Jap task force of six aircraft carriers and other vessels, which had been training for six months for the job, sailed from Tankan, an unknown base on Etorofu island, just north of the main Japanese islands, to a point 200 miles north of Pearl Harbor.

That this force had begun the attack was known to Mr. Hull when he faced Nomura and Kurusu. He replied that the Japanese note was "crowded with infamous falsehoods and distortions so huge that I never imagined until today that any government on this planet was capable of uttering them."

Meanwhile, on Nov. 27, a day late as it turned out, General Marshall and Admiral Stark prepared a memorandum that it was essential for United States to gain time and that it was desirable to make agreements with the British and Dutch to issue warnings to the Japanese against aggressive action.

This is the chain of events upon which the army board of inquiry singled out Mr. Hull for failure to gain time. It wrote: "The responsibility apparently assumed by the Secretary of State (and we have no other proof that anyone else assumed the responsibility finally and definitely) was to determine when the United States would reach the impasse with Japan."

The case made out in the report, one notices, takes little account of the war intentions of the Japanese. The attempt to argue that the break with Japan was decided in Washington, not in Tokyo, will be a welcome gift to the anti-Roosevelt isolationist school of thought. It will leave a cloud upon the great career of Cordell Hull. But that cloud will not likely rest heavily on the eminent wartime Secretary of State, nor will the case likely convince many Americans.

Requires Special Care, Development Is Still In Infancy

By MARY ALICE QUAYNE

With the promise of more synthetic tires on the market and the number already in use, it is important that motorists learn the technique of caring for these tires. One authority says that each tire should last for 35,000 to 40,000 miles if properly cared for.

While the latest output of synthetic tires withstand hot and cold as well as the natural rubber, the earlier products did not. One of the fundamental rules is to keep speed down. If the motorist tries to burn up the roads he may burn up his tires.

At unwarranted high speeds or badly underinflated it is probable that the tires will not give thousands, but merely hundreds, of miles of wear. Tire casings and pressures should always be checked carefully every time the car is on the lubrication hoist of the service station. To obtain maximum tire life, every motorist should change wheels at regular intervals, preferably every 2,000 miles, from one position to another.

Imperfect wheel alignment is one of the greatest menaces to tires. The average mechanical condition of passenger automobiles at this time makes it imperative that the wheel alignment be tested at least five times a year, or more often, if possible.

Breaking in new synthetic tires is a subject of concern. After a prolonged study the authorities have issued definite instructions for drivers.

To obtain the best service results, like many other mechanical devices, should be "broken in" under light work, is the warning issued to motorists.

A light load permits the casing to stretch or grow slowly and allows the tread better to follow the growth of the casing without cracking before the tread is hardened by the higher temperature produced under full load.

On many vehicles the most lightly loaded tire positions are on the front wheels. Where this is the case, new tires should be operated for at least 5,000 miles on the front wheels.

Another important factor affecting the life of a tire is the condition of brakes. Tests have proved that when these appliances are below normal standard of operation they can bring about a considerable amount of wear and harm.

According to the International Association of Chiefs of Police, one car in every seven on the highways has faulty brakes. This estimate is based on checks of 1,806,145 cars in the United States and Canada over a period of six weeks. Of the cars inspected 14.6 per cent of the brakes failed to take hold before the pedals came within an inch of the floorboards.

The high proportion of poor brakes revealed by the police check (not a comprehension test, but a wartime device for screaming out the worst cases) is attributed to less regular car care resulting from curtailed wartime use, wartime shortage of repair parts and service facilities and the fact that cars on an average are almost twice as old as in pre-war years.

Synthetic rubber and the uses developed through wartime application have opened new avenues in construction of motor vehicles, which will make for better units while cutting costs, according to recent reports. The results indicate that a wide scope of requirements can be met by this material for passenger automobiles, trucks and buses.

The basic reason for this confidence, in the opinion of the authorities, is that the chemist can compound into the synthetic product the mechanical and physical characteristics he desires, whereas natural rubber has established specified limitations that defy man's ingenuity to alter.

The development of synthetic rubber is practically in its infancy when compared to the years of development of the art of natural rubber compounding.

Resistance by the synthetic products to ultra-violet rays, ozone, acid and gas diffusion is asserted to be far superior to natural rubber.

Hong Kong's Return To Britain Justified

FINANCIAL POST, TORONTO

Britains determination to repossess her Crown Colony of Hong Kong has aroused considerable criticism in certain quarters in the United States. The attack, it is believed, largely stems from the former isolationist bloc, which has seldom missed an opportunity to muddy relations between the two great English-speaking democracies.

It may come as a surprise to some of these self-appointed critics to learn that Hong Kong, acquired from the Chinese in 1841, has been a British possession longer than much territory now considered an integral part of the United States.

Here are some examples:

Place—	When acquired	From
Texas	1845	Mexico
California	1846	Mexico
Oregon	1846	Britain
New Mexico	1848-53	Mexico
Arizona	1848-53	Mexico
Alaska	1867	Russia
Hawaii	1898	Spain
Guam, Wake	1896	Spain

It would be utterly ridiculous to suggest that the United States should now return, say, Texas, California, New Mexico or Arizona to Mexico, though all of these were more or less forcibly taken over, and at the time were largely peopled by Mexicans. In many ways the case of Hong Kong is parallel, except that it has been a British possession longer and the area of land involved is infinitesimal compared with the empire secured by the Americans. Like the states mentioned, however, Hong Kong has been almost entirely developed and financed by its present owners and it is regarded by them as a vital part of their possessions.

Criticism of Britain's intention to stay in Hong Kong seems a little out of place.

Tribute to Mr. Howe

Editor, Bulletin: In the month of May this year this organization (The Canadian Communications Union) had its differences of opinion with Hon. C. D. Howe to the extent that a large body of workers went through the formality of taking a strike vote, being all technical experts concerned with Canada's communication system and employees under the jurisdiction of Mr. Howe and his department. During negotiations on the dispute I had occasion to meet Mr. Howe in the city of Hamilton, and from there on I changed my opinions on the value of being a cabinet minister. I saw a man awfully tired and I saw a man awfully worried. I saw a man past the age when most men ought to have so much placed upon their shoulders, and I concluded that his was the sacrifice and not mine. I found a kindly man, a man with human understanding. Some time later I wrote to thank him for his kind undersanding of the problems that we had discussed, and took the occasion to congratulate him for his splendid contribution in behalf of the peoples of the country in which we are privileged to live. Promptly I received a reply of thanks and that, too, is out of the ordinary for men high in the service of the country. I was struck with the last few lines. May I repeat them for you: "Yes, the job I had during the war was a tremendous effort, but I assure you that the job I have taken over for the next five years is 10 times more strenuous." Mr. Howe, knowing full well the burden he would have to carry, did not shrink from that responsibility, although I venture to say he would like to but he feels there is a job to do, and as he served during the war so he will serve in the years that lie ahead. And with that, let me say this. I cannot but feel that in this mad demand (and you will notice they all demand) for action, action, and haste, there is just a faint tinge of politics behind it all. Don't these people think that the minister is well able to understand what lies ahead of him? Don't they think he is trying to grapple with this problem? Then we have the cry from irresponsible men in the labor movement, men trying to compare the service of a war worker with the gratuity and service of the soldier. It all smacks of politics, and a lot of people are being misled. Give the minister a thought, and do a little suffering like those who fought our battles across the seas. Or like the members of this union who also bore much of the suffering in far places. Do that and be a little more human, a little more understanding, and turn a deaf ear to a lot of windbags with an axe to grind.

ERNEST SMITH,
General Organizer,
The Canadian
Communications Union.

Long Ago

Editor Bulletin: In connection with the atomic bomb in which Jewish scientists had such weighty part, I desire to point out that Jewish Rabbinical literature have long before Einstein and the atomic bomb, dealt with it and forsaw its possibility. Especially a famous Rabbi—one Rabbi Joseph Rosin—taught that time is relative, subject to physical law. Especially in his views on what we know as atoms, he was quite up to date.

Maybe it would do Christians good if they would look into what Jews have contributed in the way of enlightenment.

Do Unto Others

Editor, Bulletin: Mr. Vaughan has said some very unkind things about the Canadian girls. His expressions, silly, overpainted, overtalkative, while the English girl is simple and intelligent, burns me up. Why didn't he stay in England with his bride? A true Canadian would never dream of running down his own country girls. And does he ever stop to think that his children, if he has any, will be Canadians. As for natural color, well, any girl that comes from the country, either in Scotland or England, mostly have rosy cheeks. But I have come across some very natural girls here too, who don't use paint. I am not against it, as there are some very fine girls that use it. As for clever and intelligent girls, I could name hundreds here in Edmonton alone. I could almost bet that he does all the talking, and his wife never gets a word in edgeways.

I think it is belittling for a returned man to come home from the war zone and talk like that. Has he ever thought of the homes that will never see their loved ones again till they meet in the Great Beyond—Canadians all! They gave their young lives so Britain could be free, and to keep the enemy from our own doorstep. I was a bride from the First Great War. I love Canada as my home; one son has just come back from over there, and one is still in Holland, who went through the invasion into Germany, which was no picnic for any of them.

Editor, Bulletin: I'm writing to Mrs. A. J. Anderson.

Dear lady, I sympathize greatly with you and how true every word of your letter was. Yes this is the way the government money has always been spent—squandered uselessly.

Before the war my husband and I had to live on $8.00 a month although my husband was a veteran of the last great war.

After four years my husband had lost 33 pounds, and I shrunk to a mere shadow. I took a cold; it was neglected because I couldn't buy a 35c bottle of cough syrup, and turned to bronchitis. Now the bronchitis has turned to asthma and I'm an invalid for the rest of my days.

Never mind dear lady it won't be like this where we're going from here, and like you say the sooner the better. God bless you.

THE SICK LADY.

Ecclesiastes 1:9, we read: "The thing that hath been, it is that which shall be, and that which is done is that which shall be done, and there is no new thing under the sun."

In Genesis 19:24-25, we read: "And the Lord rained upon Sodom and upon Gomorrah brimstone and fire from the Lord out of heaven: and he overthrew those cities, and all the plain, and all the inhabitants of the cities, and that which grew upon the ground." The results seem much alike.

Major and Minor Notes

By John Oliver

One of the most active seasons in its career is planned by the Women's Musical Club, starting with the opening meeting on Wednesday night, Oct. 5, at the Masonic Temple. This organization divides its major activities into two separate groups. One, and that which is known to the largest number, is the Celebrity Series of concerts. The other is the program of regular meetings, held twice a month, at which members congregate to hear programs. Both divisions are important in the life of the club. The Celebrity Series furthers the musical welfare of the city by bringing world-renowned artists, who if they did not come here, would be heard by only a small proportion of music lovers, unless by means of phonograph records or radio. The regular meetings bring members together to hear recitals mainly by city artists and providing an opportunity for meeting one another and discussing matters of general musical interest.

JOHN OLIVER

The regular meetings, also, provide an opportunity for young artists to display their talents, gain confidence in appearing before audiences and provide a stepping stone to a wider field of appreciation should they elect to embark upon a concert career. In the case of more mature and better known performers they give a lead and set an example through the superior quality of their work. For the audience the bi-monthly meetings provide good music, a chance to assess the value of musical talent, and a venue by which collective effort may be made to advance the cause of music and develop a greater love of the art among the public as a whole.

Mrs. H. S. Craig is president of the Women's Musical Club for the 1945-46 season. This is her first term as chief executive, although she has served several terms in the councils. Other officers are: Hon. pres., Mrs. J. C. Bowen; past president, Mrs. T. W. Hamilton; 1st vice-president, Mrs. F. W. Mills; 2nd vice-president Hazel Taylor; secretary, Mrs. Beulah Doney; assistant secretary, Mrs. T. W. Dalkin; treasurer, Mrs. A. W. Macbeth; program convener, Mrs. E. Wershof; social convener, Mrs. Alfred Chard; membership convener, Mrs. Herbert Paterson; pianist, Cathryn Zender; manager of Celebrity Series, Mrs. Ernest Meaden.

Last season, it will be recalled, the first meeting, a guest recital by Ruth Markus, of Calgary, was at night. That event proved so successful that it will be repeated this year. Thus, on Wednesday night, Oct. 5, Frederick Newnham, baritone of Calgary will inaugurate a series of programs that will carry on until the following spring.

The other October program will be devoted to music by a string ensemble under the direction of Dennis Clayton, with an assisting vocalist. Other programs, by months, are as follows: November, piano and vocal recital; duo recital; December, Christmas music by Christ Church choir, conducted by H. G. Turner; January, guest recital, artist yet to be chosen; February students' program, and a recital of works by Rachmaninoff; March folk songs and dances in costumes, and annual meeting.

The club expects to have a large membership and to encourage new members to join, a special tea is being held at the Empire Room of the Hudson's Bay Company store on Oct. 1. With the cessation of hostilities and the end of a great deal of war work, it is expected that many former members will return to the fold, while others with more time available will take advantage of the opportunity to join and make a contribution to the musical and cultural welfare of the city.

Bittersweet, a romantic light opera with book, lyrics and musc by Noel Coward, has been selected by the Edmonton Civic Opera Society for its next production. Back from her vacation, Mrs. James R. Carmichael announced that the die had been cast in favor of the internationally successful Coward opus and that the presentation of Rudolf Friml's Rose-Marie, on which work had commenced last spring, would be in abeyance.

It has been planned to hold the first rehearsal on Monday next, Sept. 11. Mrs. Carmichael said that as the necessary material, including vocal scores, had not yet arrived, that gathering would be delayed until further notice. In selecting Bittersweet it was felt that greater opportunities would be given to a larger number. Therefore, Rose-Marie, colorful, melodious and attractive though it is, will wait for the future.

While it has not been finally decided, there is a likelihood that the society will confine itself to the major effort this season. Bittersweet is a difficult work, requiring a large and competent company of singers. It calls for colorful scenery and costumes, and there is a feeling among executives that a concentrated effort should be made to insure a memorable venture. Should this be the case rehearsals will not commence until preliminary plans are completed to the finest detail. It is expected that an early decision will be made as to whether one or two productions will be scheduled, and by that time, the Bittersweet rehearsal material will be here, and intensive work will be the order of the day.

In the meantime Mrs. Carmichael is proceeding with a survey of the available soloists. No definite assignments of roles have been made but she is anxious to assemble a strong cast, as both vocally and histrionically Bittersweet calls for talent of a high order.

Plans have been formulated and rehearsals commenced for the second season of the Edmonton Philharmonic Society of which Abe Fratkin is conductor, and E. B. Swindlehurst president. The first gathering of the new season was held at the Public Lilbary last Tuesday evening, when both playing and discussion took place. Present plans call for five concerts with the likelihood of a sixth being added in the way of a request program. While the dates for the concerts have not been set, it appears probable that the first will be about the middle of October. Mr. Fratkin's tentative program includes the Ruy Blas overture, Mendelssohn; 1st. Symphony in C Major, Beethoven; the Prize Song from Die Meistersinger, Wagner; two string numbers, Esa's Death and Anitra's Dance from Grieg's Peer Gynt music; Johann Strauss' Perpetual Motion and overture to the operetta The Bat.

There will be a soloist—probably a vocalist—for the first concert. Mr. Fratkin proposes to make it "full steam ahead" with his rehearsals from now on. Although the orchestra has suffered severe blows in the loss of such excellent violinists as Dina Heckleman and Patricia Morris, there are compensating features.

The disbanding of the band which had been a part of No. 4 Initial Training School, RCAF, here, and which later was transferred to the Pacific coast, has released players who had been lost to the orchestra since last winter. Gus Lindskoog, the original concertmaster, has returned, as have some others. Walter Holowach, another important member of the violin section, has returned, while some of the players in the wood-wind and brass sections who were with the air force band, also are available.

Mr. Fratkin may add one or two George Gershwin compositions to his first program. Here is the reason. A committee has been set up including musicians all across the Dominion to observe the birthday anniversary of Gershwin and do him honor during the week set aside for the special tributes. Gershwin was born Sept. 26, 1898 and died July 12, 1937, but a week in October has been set aside in which to honor him. Sir Ernest MacMillan, Ettore Mazzolini of Toronto; Jean Baudet, Montreal, Allard de Ridder, Ottawa, and others are on the committee of 50 Canadian musicians to observe the occasion.

A telegram has been received By Mr. Fratkin from John Adaskin, Toronto, inviting him to become a member of the group. Mr. Fratkin replied that he would consider it a privilege to associate himself with the committee and as the occasion has for part of its purpose, the encouraging of performaances of Gershwin's music, Mr. Fratkin probably will include one or more numbers on the October program.

"GOD IS MY PARTNER"

A man who has made a signal success in business lets us in on his secret.

By JAMES L. KRAFT
President, Kraft Cheese Co.

I remember a story I heard, many years ago, of a gifted horticulturist who had spent his life developing improved strains of many plants and flowers. By painstaking effort throughout many years, he had succeeded in developing what was thought by horticulturists to be the most beautiful rose in the world. One day a friend, looking at some of the beautiful blooms, turned to the scientist and said, "What a wonderful rose God has made!"

The scientist replied, "God did not make this rose. God and I made it!"

Here in this story, if we stop to study its deeper significance, is the essence of what we mean when we talk of "walking with God." Here is the kind of partnership with divine aims and purposes which it is the privilege of the Christian to enjoy. For as Christ came to give salvation as a free gift to all who would believe in Him, so too He came to make us sharers with Him in a way of life—and participants in His power, by following that way of life. This is the ultimate dignity and wonder of the human soul that—imperfect as we are, as mistaken as we can be in our limited grasp of the truth—we can still, by God's grace, become partners with Him and achieve success far beyond human capacity.

Without God, nothing is possible. This close personal communion between God and man is the richest gift of Christian faith—and it takes only an act of will on our part to receive the gift in full. How surprising it is that many who count themselves devout Christians continue to work without the presence of God in the direction of their daily affairs. They are either unaware of His power in their lives—or unwilling to accept the great boon of partnership with God. Many of us, busy accumulating goods, chattels, money, lay by grudgingly a small portion of our wealth for the work of the Lord, giving it as a gift, if you please. It is no gift unto the Master when a Christian gives one-tenth of his increase unto the Lord—for it was written down by the hand of Moses that one-tenth of all that a man has, one-tenth of all of his increase belongs to the Lord, and is holy unto the Lord. Until a Christian accepts this fundamental basis of stewardship of material properties, and until he is willing to accept God's partnership, he cannot become successful in the Christian sense.

DESTINED TO BE UTTER FAILURE

As a young man, trying to work alone with only my hands and brains to direct me, after many bitter disappointments, I finally came to the conviction that I was destined to be an utter failure. At the moment when that conviction came to me, I saw things clearly for the first time in my business life. I turned over the little business which I then had to God. I asked Him to help make it a success. I was ready to accept His help—and no help of any kind can be given to a person who closes His will to it. Alone, I knew I could do nothing. I had failed. Then I let God take the directive. From that moment on, my business changed. Nor have I from that moment on been assailed by a single doubt as to its success. God and I, together with thousands of other willing hands and brains, have built our business which today extends around the world. Without God, not even the first step could have been taken toward success. I am convinced that a still deeper consecration during the process of building our business, on my part, might have resulted in a still greater and a better business. To work successfully with God, we must work diligently to know His will and to understand His purposes, at all times. It is possible to know His will without any question of doubt if we will but read His word and seek Him in prayer daily, and keep our mind open for His divine direction.

That spiritual conviction which came to me that God must be a working partner in any successful business venture was the deepest and most personal revelation of my life. I am convinced that it was no unusual or miraculous thing, however—for I believe it is repeated, in one way or another, in a greater or less degree, times unnumbered, depending upon our willingness to receive and do the will of God. I believe it is so with every man or woman who makes what we know as a success in life, and with all who contribute to the good of society.

It matters not what the business may be—whether it is that of a farmer, an industrialist, a science, an artist, or a homemaker. God has a way of taking those who are willing to work WITH Him and using them powerfully wherever He finds them. I know a missionary who was for many years stationed in an out-of-the-way spot in Burma. His career seemed undistinguished—often he thought himself quite forgotten. He encountered obstacle after obstacle in his work. He thought his life a failure. Yet he stayed close to God. And one day God used him—and used him with a power which would not have been possible had the missionary refused, by an act of his own will, to become a partner in full accord with divine will. When the horror of the Burma war fell upon his section of the land, he was the instrument whereby literally thousands of lives were saved, the leader in a great evacuation which he conducted with more than human strength and intelligence. God used him because he was willing and had learned to know God's will.

PENICILLIN A GIFT FROM GOD, TOO

I am convinced that one of the life-saving miracles of this war—penicillin—is not a mere discovery of science, nor yet a free gift to mankind, but a true result of partnership with God on the part of the men responsible for its development. God gave us our talents, our brains and our hands—greatest of all, He gave us free will wherewith to choose our paths of destiny. If, by an act of that free will, we accept partnership with Him, there is no limit on earth to what we may accomplish. If we ignore that divine help, our lives are doomed to failure and disappointment.

Among the businesses I mentioned a few moments ago, where partnership with God can make the difference between failure and success, I mentioned that of making a home. The rearing of children is the first business of the home—and what an important business it is we cannot even estimate, since its products, successful fine citizens, are beyond price. You all recall Abraham Lincoln's beautiful tribute to a successful woman—"All that I am or ever hope to be, I owe to my mother!"

Lincoln's mother—and the mothers of most truly great men—have been in partnership with God. They knew that to be entrusted with the direction of a human life is the greatest responsibility on earth. And they knew that, without divine guidance they would never be equal to giving sound direction. They sought God's help daily, and God gave them power beyond their own strength. I am convinced that today what our homes need is not so much child psychology, regulated play, attention to all the physical details of child-care—though all of these are important—but more than those we need a true partnership with God on the part of every member of the family. If our homes are dwelling places of the spirit—if God is admitted as a partner—we will have no juvenile delinquency, no warped and wasted adults. The greatest single business of this country today, it seems to me, is to insure that our citizens of the future shall learn to work with God. Without Him as partner in the negotiations, any peace plan is foredoomed to failure. With Him, nations and men can live and work at peace with one another.

In my business life, I have talked with many young men and women who have come to me deeply discouraged about their chances for success. One will say to me that he has no chance to succeed because all the frontiers in this country have already been conquered. Another will say that everything worth doing has already been done. Another says, "There is no room at the top in my business for a man like me!" The excuses for failure are many. But there is only one reason for failure—and that is that the man or woman who fails has been working without God.

Any young person who for any reason whatsoever refuses partnership with God, seals his own fate and writes failure after his name at the beginning of his career.

The moment a man or woman recognizes this fact and accepts their God-given right to benefit by divine wisdom and direction, their life takes a different course.

I know from my own experience and that of countless people that the real difference between failure and success is a simple act of will. How many Christians there are who fail to take advantage of the blessed riches of our faith. All power and wisdom and greatness are ready for our use if we will but take them. But many Christians enclose themselves in a tight little room of their own making, never opening the doors and windows to admit the light which is there for the illumination of their daily lives and tasks. God is willing—and eager—to accept His children as partners—for only thus can His work be done. But far too many of them will not take the one step necessary to insure success—acceptance of His way in their lives.

On the fortieth anniversary of the founding of the business which bears my name my associates presented me with a plaque upon which is hand-inscribed a verse from the Proverbs. I regard it as one of the choicest of all my possessions. And I think too that it might well serve as the motto for all who are willing to work with, and thus for God. The Proverb reads, "Seest thou a man diligent in his business? He shall stand before Kings; he shall not stand before mean men."

If we would be diligent in our business—if we would make a success of our own lives—if we would contribute something toward the well-being and happiness of the world—then there is one way in which we can accomplish all those things. We can become partners with God, and with His help, we can achieve true success in our private lives, and, along with Him, share in the building of His Kingdom upon earth.

Christian Science

"Man" will be the subject of the Lesson-Sermon at all Christian Science Churches on Sunday. The Golden Text is Psalms 17:1,15. One of the Scriptural citations is "For thou, Lord, wilt bless the righteous; with favour wilt thou compass him as with a shield" (Psalms 5:12). One of the correlative passages from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, is "Good does not create a mind susceptible of causing evil, for evil is the opposing error and not the truth of creation" (p. 93).

It was disclosed by James Mullin of the American Friends Service Committee. He said 20 CO's mostly Jehovah's Witnesses, have been serving unofficially as instructors, counselors and advisors to the juvenile prisoners.

Plans Expansion Of Church Program

An expansion program which will involve expenditure of millions of dollars, enlargement of the Church's welfare program, sending missionaries into all parts of the world and assisting church members in the armed forces when they return home, was revealed by George Albert Smith, president of the Latter-day Saints (Mormon) Church.

The program will include enlargement and building of many new chapels in the United States and other parts of the world when materials are available, and construction of new temples in Los Angeles and Oakland, California.

Regarding the future missionary program, Smith said the church will continue to follow its wartime policy of sending old married couples into the mission field if they desire to go.

"We will send our missionaries to as many places in the world as will receive them," he stated.

He said another central storehouse will be erected as one of the new steps in the church's welfare program.

Delegates Told Educate Nations

Presiding at the opening session of the Pax Romana Regional Congress in London, the Rt. Rev. Bernard Griffin, Archbishop of Westminster, told the 200 delegates in attendance that "The nations need re-education and Pax Romana must see that they are re-educated in Christian principles."

The Archbishop added that members of Pax Romana should never be "political agitators," but that the solution for the world's ills must be within the framework of national traditions and inspirations.

The Rev. Edward E. Swanstrom, assistant executive secretary of the War Relief Services of the National Catholic Welfare Conference in the U.S. said the committee's work was made possible by "The wholehearted Christ-inspired love of neighbor that inspired millions all over the United States to contribute of the bounty God had given them to help suffering brethren the world over."

Fundamentals Do Not Fall

TODAY'S MESSAGE

When School Begins

SCHOOL days are here again. Over are the long months which have seen the world emerge from war to peace. For many children this will be their first peacetime school term. For all it will be a further step toward a new and different postwar world.

These youngsters are the beneficiaries of millions who have died to protect the liberties they are perhaps too young to appreciate. But assuredly, in years to come, they will know the full meaning of the sacrifices endured on their behalf. They will understand that with freedom and peace come obligations to honor and perpetuate the heritage preserved for them.

Religious leaders particularly look hopefully to the young for the high courage and devotion to Christian ideals out of which alone can come the promise of lasting peace. The child goes back to school to be instructed in those things which will help to make him self-supporting in later life; but he must also learn the lessons of co-operation, goodwill, unselfishness and steadfastness in principle, which are the fundamentals of worthy citizenship.

It should be a solemn thought for any parent whose child is going to school for the first time that actually he is, in a sense, leaving his home to begin living in the world; that on what he learns and how well he applies the teachings of democracy and religion will depend his own future happiness and the security of the world itself. The school remains always the basis of a good and thriving society.

Dedicate Temple In Fall Ceremony

A million-dollar temple of the Latter-day Saints (Mormon) church in Idaho will be dedicated in three-day ceremonies September 23, 24 and 25.

The impressive, tower-topped white stone structure situated on the banks of the Snake River is the eighth temple to be dedicated by the Church. Four others are in Utah, one in Arizona, one in Hawaii and one in Canada.

Foundation work on the temple began Aug. 5, 1940 and the corner stone was laid Oct. 19, 1940. The capstone was placed on the temple tower Aug. 19, 1941. Since then interior work has been completed.

The main structure of the temple, which is set on a bed of lava rock 18 feet deep, is 19½ by 131½ feet, upon the centre of which is a tower 37 by 37 feet at the base and extending 143 feet high. The annex of the temple is 34 by 174 feet and the assembly room connecting the annex to the temple proper is 36 by 53 feet.

To Clear Damage

One of the first tasks facing the new Anglican Bishop of London, Dr. William Charles Wand, is to clear up bomb damage at Fulham Palace. Every room was blasted and most of the windows broken by repercussion from the explosives. Dr. Wand, who with his wife was in Australia during the blitz, said that "If we did not share the horrors of bombing, we are having our share of discomfort in cleaning up."

44 Representatives At Baptist Rally

Members of the Disciples of Christ and the Northern Baptist Convention met in Wisconsin in a "Spiritual Resources and Evangelism Week" for informal discussion on possible merger of the two denominations.

First co-operative venture ever attempted by the two denominations, the conference drew 305 delegates, including 44 representatives of the Disciples of Christ, eight of whom appeared on the program.

"We dared to face realistically and in the spirit of real truth-seekers all the factors, historical, doctrinal and ecclesiastical, that separate us," said Dr. G. Pitt Beers, executive secretary of the American Baptist Home Mission Society.

"There was no idea of official action or even of recommendation of any action," he added, "but simply an experience of mutual acquaintance and helping each other to discover the spiritual resources which are ours in our common Lord Jesus Christ for facing the postwar world and carrying through more victoriously our Lord's commission to 'go make disciples of all nations'."

Predict New Era In Future Church

A new era of co-operation among Protestants and Roman Catholics of Austria is predicted by religious leaders in Vienna as the churches make plans for the future.

Bishop Gerhard May, leader of the Austrian Evangelical Church, asserts that the traditional bitter rivalry between the Roman Catholic Church and the Evangelical Church has been replaced by an unofficial friendship.

When Bishop May was ordained in Vienna last year, Cardinal Innitzer sent two Catholic representatives to attend the ceremonies—the first time in Austrian history that such a step has been taken.

Catholic leaders have placed churches at the disposal of Evangelical preachers faced with serving thousands of German refugees from the Balkans. Bombed-out Catholic parishes have also used Evangelical church buildings.

Bishop May said Evangelicals are liquidating the anti-Catholic (Los von Rom) movement. "We are dropping nationalism and politics from religion and are seeking a new, positive attitude toward the Catholic Church," he said.

Alternative

MADISON, Wis.—A bill designed as an alternative to a proposed state constitutional amendment permitting state money to be spent for transportaion of parochial and private school children was introduced in the Wisconsin Legislature by Senator Risser, Madison, Progressive. Opposed to submitting the proposed amendment to the voters on the ground that it would provoke a heated religious argument, Senator Risser offered a bill which, by statute, would permit parochial and private school children to ride on public school buses if the children attended accredited schools and provided the transportation was "in the interests of health, safety and convenience."

Material Power Of Communism Is Emphasized

Asserting that "in our generation communism may emerge as a new proletarian religion," the Toronto and Kingston Synod of the Presbyterian Church in Canada adopted a report by its committee on church life and work which warned that "the time has come when the church must take communism seriously.

"Russia's amazing achievements in the war have astounded the nations," the report said, "and have proved that there is within communism a spiritual as well as a material power."

CHURCH BUSINESS

It added that "it is the business of the church to lift this great issue out of the realm of blind prejudice and direct the minds of our people to the rock of solid thinking, so that they shall not be the victims of stupid and unworthy fear."

The report charged that "already one great church has, by a methodic and persistent policy, poisoned millions of minds against one of our great Allies," and "imputed to her sinister motives and ambitions that do not belong to the Soviet.

There is no reason whatever that we should close our eyes to the atheistic and materialistic philosophy of Marxism," the report declared. "But let us remember that it was Jesus who said 'Those that are not against us are for us'; and there is no denying the fact but that the social ideals of communism bear striking resemblance to the social emphasis of the Christian gospel.

"If Russia has been successful in the application of state medicine, we should be willing to learn from her. If she has succeeded in removing forever the idle men from the market-place, then we should discover her secret. If she has established justice between man and man; given cake to none and bread to all; applied the teaching of Jesus' parable of the rich man and Lazarus more realistically than professedly Christian nations, then let us take off our hats to her."

AT MCDOUGALL—The Rev. Dr. A. K. McMinn, minister of McDougall United Church, who will preach at the morning and evening services on Sunday. His subjects: "Entering a New Era—and Knowing it" at 11 a.m. and "Religion In Two Loads of Earth" at 7:30 p.m. The Young People's Union will meet at 9 p.m.

At Metropolitan

The Rev. R. M. Thompson, minister of Metropolitan United Church, will preach companion sermons on Sunday on the theme "Responsibility." In the morning, "Personal Responsibility," and in the evening, "Corporate Responsibility." The Sunday school will reopen in Metropolitan at the usual hours tomorrow.

Church to Face Test in Future

The church will face its real test when the question of world reconciliation on levels beyond hatred and sentimentality have to be faced. Dr. A. M. Chirgwin, chairman, told the spring assembly in London of the Congregational Union of England and Wales.

"It is not today, but tomorrow", he declared "when there will be chaos and savage outbursts, suspicion, mistrust, treachery and self-seeking, that the church's hour will strike. It is when the world is at its worst that the church of Christ must be at its best".

Stressing the need for active expression of the Christian faith, Dr. Chirgwin said many do not believe "that the gospel matters or that it has anything to do with better housing or the Atlantic charter".

In Great Britain, which is claimed by many as probably the most Christian country in the world, only a fraction of our countrymen are actively and openly on the Christian side, he declared. "Only a minority know anything about the great affirmations of faith, millions never open the Bible, and still greater millions have not prayed in years".

The First—and Best

Recent years have seen a growing practice of reducing long magazine and other articles to short form, thus enabling the reader to peruse volumes of material in a brief time. Such a practice has its advantages and disadvantages. Its advantages lie in the fact that much is missed by the reader who has not acquired the knack of reading between the lines. However, for the one who can read between the lines it is an effective stimulus to mental growth. The mind that is exercised in filling in what some original thinker or writer has left out is surely engaged in healthy exercise.

Modern digests copy the technique of much older forms. The Bible is a readers' digest—spiritual. The first chapter of the book of Genesis tells in thirty-one verses the story, in poetic form, of the creation of the world. The remainder of the Book of Genesis and the next five books relate the history of over a thousand years. It is a history of the religious, political, social and economic struggle of a people growing into a nation. Hundreds of volumes have been written on each of these aspects of Biblical history.

All of these volumes put together do not record everything that may be read between the lines and between the words of this ancient readers' digest—the Bible. There yet remains great unexplored areas waiting for mental and spiritual conquest. The Book—its history, literature, ethical and spiritual instruction—still offers the greatest challenge to the best minds of any age. — Chaplain Ralph H. Finn in "The Alamogordo Blockbuster".

The Vital Contact

Dr. Theodore L. Cuyler once visited Scotland and made diligent search for someone who had known Robert Murray McCheyne. Finally one old man was brought forward.

"Can you tell me," asked Dr. Cuyler, "some of the texts of McCheyne?" And the old man made reply, "I don't remember them." "Then can you tell me some sentences that he used?" And again the reply was, "I have entirely forgotten them." Then said Dr. Cuyler, "Well, don't you remember anything about him at all?"

"Ah!" said the man, "that is a different question. I do remember something about him. When I was a lad by the wayside playing one day McCheyne came along, and laying his hand on my head, said, 'Jamie, lad, I am away to see your poor sick sister,' and then looking into my eyes, he said, 'And, Jamie, I am very concerned about your own soul.' I have forgotten his texts and his sermons, Dr. Cuyler, but I can still feel the tremble of his hand and I can see the tear in his eye."

Romance of Our Hymns

All Danish homes sang the hymns of Bernard Severin Ingemann, and he was so universally beloved by Danish children that on his 70th birthday he received a present of a golden horn from "the children of Denmark." Kathleen Blanchard gives glimpses of Ingemann's life as a background for his fine hymn, Through the Night of Doubt and Sorrow.

By KATHLEEN BLANCHARD

The name of Bernard Severin Ingemann is known throughout Denmark.

He was the son of a Lutheran pastor and poet and was born on the Island of Falster, Denmark, in 1789. After training for the legal profession, he took to letters and became a professor of the Danish language at Soro academy, Zealand.

Ingemann was inspired with the spirit of patriotism. His life's work was to teach the children of his native land their romantic history in attractive tales and poetry. He wrote stories for Danish children of their own land, so filled with thrilling romance that he was as much a favorite as any fairy-tale writer.

All Danish homes sang his hymns. His influence with the young was lasting.

In 1859, Bernard Ingemann was to celebrate his 70th birthday. The children wanted to do something to show their affection for him in return for all that he had done for them. A great secret was whispered round Denmark.

Each child was asked to give two cents (no more). With this subscription, a lovely golden horn was purchased and engraved. On it were the different national characters from his historical stories, and on his birthday morning, the gift arrived at his home, with the following inscription:

Bernard Severin Ingemann
from his friends,
the children of Denmark.

In 1867, Mr. Baring-Gould (who wrote Onward Christian Soldiers) took the Danish original hymn and adapted it for the People's Hymnal. In 1875, it was again slightly altered for Hymns, Ancient and Modern.

Through the night of doubt and sorrow,
Onward goes the pilgrim band,
Singing songs of expectation,
Marching to the Promised Land.

Clear before us through the darkness
Gleams and burns the guiding Light;
Brother clasps the hand of brother,
Stepping fearless through the night.

One, the object of our journey,
One, the faith which never tires,
One, the earnest looking forward,
One, the hope our God inspires.

One, the strain that lips of thousands
Lift as from the heart of one;
One, the conflict; one, the peril,
One, the march in God begun.

One, the gladness of rejoicing,
On the far eternal shore,
Where the one Almighty Father
Reigns in love for evermore.

Onward, therefore, pilgrim brothers,
Onward with the Cross our aid,
Bear its shame and fight its battle
Till we rest beneath its shade.

Soon shall come the great awaking,
Soon the rending of the tomb;
Then the scattering of all shadows
And the end of toil and gloom.

190-Acre Farm Forms Aid Scheme

Operation of a Community Foundation, similar to the Palos Park project in Chicago, is planned by the Churchman's League, an interdenominational organization of laymen.

Present plans call for use of a 190-acre farm in a nearby suburban area where moral and spiritual rehabilitation of men will be undertaken in connection with farm work and raising cattle. Officials of the league said a lodge would be erected on the property to house war veterans and other maladjusted individuals.

The plans were announced at a retreat conducted by the Churchmen's League at Baldwin-Wallace College in Berea, O., where Paul T. Sanders, director of the Chicago project, was the speaker.

Human Frailties

Aunt Jane Smith, an old lady who, without any intellectual equipment to boast of, was exceedingly fond of moralizing over the aspects in which life presents itself, was calling on a neighbor who was convalescing from a severe illness. "Well," said Aunt Jane, when the usual condolences and congratulations had been exchanged, "I'll tell you what it is. When we don't feel very good, then we think we are pretty bad off; but when we get worse, then we wish we were as well as we were when we thought we were bad off." Which nobody can deny.— Youths Companion.

To Issue Book

A book by the Cardinal Patriarch of Lisbon, Dr. Manuel Goncalves Cerejeira, entitled "The Church and Contemporary Thought," will be issued soon by the Spanish publishing house, Epesa, it was announced in London.

In the World of Religion

Dobbie Heads Campaign

General Sir William Dobbie, defender of Malta, and Mrs. Maude F. Montgomery, mother of Field Marshal Bernard Montgomery, will take part in an interdenominational evangelistic campaign that will be held nightly during September in Central Hall at Westminster.

Explaining the purpose of the campaign, General Dobbie, who recently appeared at evangelistic meetings in the U.S. and Canada, said "there's lots of talk about the importance of getting man's relationship with fellow men right and about the brotherhood of nations, but we must be careful not to lose sight of the thing that is more important and that's man's relationship with God."

Post-War Youth Movement

Religious activities will play an important part in Austria's post-war youth movement, according to Pastor Traar, head of the Evangelical Church's Youth program.

He said a positive attitude toward church work had risen among young people because their suffering during the war and the shallowness of Nazi teachers drove them to the church in search of inner truths. Many young people, disillusioned by the Nazis, have had their fill of politics and will not be attracted by the propaganda of political parties, which are also organizing youth movements, he predicted.

American Church Reopens

The American (Protestant Episcopal) Church in Geneva has been reopened under interdenominational sponsorship, after having been closed throughout the war.

Dr. Benjamin J. Bush, Presbyterian minister on the staff of the World Council of Churches, has been put in charge of the weekly services. Until recently he was pastor of the Westminster church in Detroit, Mich.

Tension Grows

Formation of a permanent organization of Catholics and Communists to "solve misunderstandings" has been proposed by the leader of the Christian Democratic Party at Milan.

Immediate purpose of the group would be "to certify the origin of leaflets, articles, posters, and open letters that are flooding Italy with Communist and anti-Communist propaganda."

Church Reconstruction

Nine hundred and ninety churches, one cathedral, five seminaries and four episcopal palaces have been rebuilt in Spain during the past five years, it was announced by the National Reconstruction Board. In addition, nine cathedrals, three seminaries and three episcopal palaces are almost completed.

The announcement was made in connection with an exhibition on reconstruction opened by the government at San Sebastian.

Found in Italy

Patriarch Gavrilo, head of the Serbian Orthodox Church, whose whereabouts have been unknown since he was spirited from Belgrade to Germany by the Nazis early this year, has been found in Italy. He entered the country about a month ago.

Synagogue Message

A call to prayer "for the healing of Israel and mankind" marked the annual Rosh Hashanah (New Year) message issued in New York by the Synagogue Council of America.

Every devout Jew was also urged to pray "for the regeneration of his own spirit so that he may be equal to the tasks that are his as Jew, as American, as citizen of what we hope will be a better global society."

Three-Faith Co-operation

"Real peace can only come out of cooperation among the three great faiths of our country," Rev. Alfred E. Willett told an audience of businessmen at the first peacetime meeting of the Kiwanis Club in Paterson, N.J.

Mr. Willett recently returned from Camp Gordon, Ga., where he served as Protestant member of an inter-faith team which presented 22 separate addresses to a total of 36,000 service men during a period of two weeks.

"Cooperation—not merely tolerance—was the theme of what we tried to tell the boys," he said. "They will not remember much of what we said, but it is enough if they only remember the picture of three religious leaders, representing three different faiths, bringing to them from the same platform the single message of cooperation."

"Adoption" by Members

A plan for encouraging juvenile offenders to attend Sunday school and church through "adoption" of the children by church members for one day a week, is being studied by the Washington Federation of Churches in conjunction with several American Legion and Veterans of Foreign Wars posts in Washington.

Predicts Growth

A great growth in interdenominationalism during the next decade was predicted by Dr. Franklin Duncombe, counselor to the Pennsylvania Christian Endeavor Union. He spoke at a ministers' conference held in connection with the Union's summer assembly.

Declaring that the dawn of a new Christian era is here, Dr. Duncombe said that "competition between groups must be eliminated at home and abroad."

He stressed that Christians "are not to police the world, but to serve it," and urged a greater sacrifice and work for peace than "we have willingly done for war." "Returning service men believe in the world mission of the church," he said. "They found it in foreign lands and in many cases it was more active than their congregations at home."

DIRECTOR—Dr. E. J. Thompson of St Stephen's College, who will direct the Christian Faith broadcast, sponsored by the United Church of Canada, each Sunday morning 9 to 9:30 over CJCA, beginning Sept. 9. The series will be of interest to all Christians.

Religious Instruction

The World Council of Churches in Geneva has appealed to the British and Federal Councils of Churches at London and New York "to demand that their governments intervene" to aid refugees in Eastern Germany, Hungary and Austria, estimated at between five and eight million.

The message declared that a constant flow of "most alarming reports" are being received from reliable sources concerning conditions in these areas. It described the food situation as "critical" and said disease is spreading and suicides are mounting.

"Hundreds of thousands of refugees are starving," the message stated. "The churches are trying to help but are completely overwhelmed."

Demands Aid

Religious instruction will again be compulsory in the grammar schools of Austria under the country's new government, it was reported in Vienna by Father Fredrich Mittelstedt, Cardinal Innitzer's secretary for religious instruction.

Anti-Semitism Is Serious Problem

Two serious problems confronting the churches in liberated countries of Europe are anti-Semitism and the arbitrary punishment of collaborationists, Dr. W. A. Visser 't Hooft, general secretary of the World Council of Churches, declared in an interview in New York.

"The problem of anti-Semitism in Europe has not been solved by the liberation," Dr. Visser 't Hooft said. "You will find everywhere that the problem will remain even after National Socialism has been completely wiped out. I don't know why this is, but I believe that anti-Semitism is a problem we will have for some time to come.

"Another great problem arises from the purge of Nazi collaborationists. It is, of course, an extremely difficult question as to where to draw the line. There have already been certain excesses in which people who have co-operated with the Germans have been treated in such an inhuman manner that the church feels it ought to protest. Justice must be done according to the best legal procedure possible and not in an arbitrary, wild way—the way of revenge."

Condemnation On the Face

An officer wearing the insignia of a colonel's rank called to see President Lincoln. Lincoln listened with sympathy to him, for he knew that he had a record for gallantry, but he also knew that the lines on the officer's face told their own story of long and unrestrained indulgence. He rose up, and, as was his habit when deeply moved, he grasped the officer's hand in both of his own and said, "Colonel, I know your story, but you carry your condemnation in your face." The President afterward said, "I dared not restore this man to his rank and give him charge of one thousand men, when he puts an enemy into his mouth to steal away his brains."—Christian Herald.

Form Committee To Assist Veterans

Veterans' Service Committees have been organized in more than 70 cities by the National Jewish Welfare Board and the Jewish War Veterans of the United States to assist discharged service men, it was announced in New York.

The committees provide a central service to meet all the problems confronting the returning veteran. Information and referral service includes an interview with the newly-discharged man to ascertain what aids he will need, and what agencies in the community can help him.

Business, educational and vocational guidance, health, governmental benefit and family adjustment services are other functions of the committee, depending on the facilities the community has to offer.

Teacher Fills Important Position in Development Of Musicianship, Character

By JOHN OLIVER

To a greater extent than ever before in the world's history, music is a necessity. The six years of war that came to a conclusion with the signing by the Japanese of an instrument of surrender aboard the great United States battleship Missouri, proved conclusively that music occupies a place of paramount importance in the lives of inhabitants of the globe, whether they be in an igloo at Chesterfield Inlet, a hammock aboard a battleship, in the shade of a palm tree on a South Sea Isle, or any place else.

At once it is cultural, entertaining, comforting, inspiring, appealing as it does to peoples of all races in all climes.

It has been said—and never disproved, that music is the fourth great material want of human nature. First comes food, then clothing, then shelter and then music.

There is no doubt of music's necessity in the lives of humanity. There is no single contributing factor in the development of fine, upright, outstanding character that surpasses music. The study of music enriches the general education and spiritual life of the individual in many ways.

The teacher occupies a pre-eminent place in the life of the community, and exercises an influence, the value of which cannot be measured by any material means.

PERSONALITY COUNTS

A teacher may be great as a teacher and as a musician. But through his personality, through varied and valuable exerience, through contact with other great personalities, a teacher can influence a student to an almost unbelievable extent.

Pupils who are smart enough to lend themselves to the influence of a fine teacher may benefit tremendously, but others, who through self-centred and narrow-minded actions feel so well versed in those things that a teacher can impart that they need nothing beyond the mere lessons, usually do not go far along the highroad of success.

Most school instruction s given in classes of from 15, 20 or up to 45 and 50 pupils. But, the music lesson, in the larger number of cases, is given privately, with only teacher and pupils in the studio.

DIRECT INFLUENCE

Thus it is that the teacher's personality may wield a widespread and direct influence on the pupil.

The teacher possessing high ideals seizes upon the opportunities presented to improve the pupil, as a responsibility to be treasured and developed to the utmost.

AN EXPERIENCE

The conscientious teacher can make each individual lesson a beautiful and memorable experience for the pupil. By a whole-hearted contribution of imagination, personality, enthusiasm and understanding, the teacher turns the music lesson into a period of definite and marked achievement.

And in many cases, the teacher's responsibility does not end with the lesson. Great educationists such as Liszt, Leschetizsky, Lamperti, Auer and others, were great not only because they were outstanding musicians and magnificent teachers. They were more than that. They were truly great personalities and by reason of their rich and varied experience with men and affairs, exerted a profound and enduring influence on all with whom they came in contact.

The principle of emulation is important. It is essential that the teacher set an example of good manners, kindness, precision, neatness and tact.

CO-ORDINATION

HEADS DEPARTMENT.—Prof. John Reymes-King, head of the music department of the University of Alberta, who will arrive here in time to commence lectures at the opening of the fall term. In addition he has accepted the post of organist and choirmaster of Robertson United Church.

The instrumental student in particular learns bodily co-ordination, becomes more alert mentally, develops imagination, finds that music is an emotional outlet, receives technical and mechanical training, improves powers to reason logically and forcefully and cultivates the ability to concentrate.

This city is fortunate in having many well qualified, diligent, methodical, resourceful and painstaking teachers to whom parents may entrust their children.

Hereunder will be found some data on teachers and schools which will aid in the selection of an instructor in this most important phase of education.

Shirley M. Jackson, teacher of piano and theory and solo performer, has opened her studio for the fall season. All her students who wrote theory examinations this year received first class honors, and her piano students passed with honors. Her studio is located at 10154 114 street, and the telephone number is 81276.

Margaret K. Rymer, ATCM, LRSM, is assistant teacher to Madame Le Saunier. She gives lessons in piano and theory and 100 per cent of her pupils received honors in examination results this year. Her studio is located at 10724 123 street, and the phone number is 82029.

Helen F. Barbour, ATCM, LRSM, has opened her studio for the new season. In addition to teaching piano and theory, she is organist at McDougall United church and accompanist for the Edmonton Male Chorus. A former class teacher of piano at McKay avenue school, she has given up this work in order to devote more of her time to private teaching. All of her students writing the theory examinations this year passed with first class honors and a large number of her piano students also received honors and first-class honors in their Toronto Conservatory examinations. Her studio is located at 10044 115 street, and her telephone number is 82719.

The Edmonton Piano Class Teachers' Association held its first meeting Thursday noon at the YWCA. Plans were made for the organization of piano classes in the schools next week. Pupils may enroll for their first two years of piano study under competent teachers who hold special certificates for this work. The piano class method includes ear training, sight reading, theoretical work, ensemble piano playing, technical exercises for the different piano touches and rhythmical training employing the rhythm band instruments.

SUCCESSFUL.—Helen F. Barbour, organist of McDougall United Church, accompanist of the Edmonton Male Chorus, and one of this city's most talented and successful piano teachers, whose students have established an enviable record of achievements.

Officers of the association for this year are: President, Miss Alberta M. Michael; vice-president, O. Hatlen; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. S. K. Harman; executive, Mrs. A. E. Wright, Mrs. Mary Luck, Miss Irene Baribeau, Miss Cathryn Zender and Miss Eleanor Lobb.

Prof. Alexander Nizoff and Avenir Nizoff, B.Sc., ATCM, announced Saturday that their studios at 9844 103 street are re-opening. Professor Nizoff is a graduate of the Moscow Conservatory of Music and a former member of the Moscow Opera. He is specializing in voice instruction. Avenir Nizoff was a Gold Medallist in the Alberta Music Festival and announced that two of his pupils graduated last year, one of them with honors. He is author of "Model Pupil in Musical Form," written for students studying form in musical composition. The Nizoffs' phone number is 21041.

The Toulson School of Music, Heintzman Hall has announced an imposing list of pupils who obtained honors after their last year's study under Mrs. Jack Toulson, ATCM, one of them, Pat Lou Sinclair, getting first class honors. The school has re-opened for the fall term.

Instruction in popular music will again be carried out this year by Jack Toulson, who is heard regularly on the Trans-Canada network of the CBC. Also available are correspondence courses for country and city students in Northern Alberta. Mailed weekly, the 20 lessons which make up the course, include special instructions as to how Mr. Toulson obtains many of his piano effects over the radio.

MANAGER—Mrs. Ernest Meaden, manager of the Women's Musical Club Celebrity Series of concerts, who has completed plans for the seven concerts to be held in the 1945-46 season.

Opera Rehearsal Has Been Delayed

First rehearsal of the new season for the Edmonton Civic Opera Society which was called for the Empire theatre on Monday, Sept. 11, has been postponed. It is expected that from the first rehearsal work will be pressed with intensity so that when production time rolls around in November the peak of efficiency will have been reached.

It is expected the company will be reinforced this year by several former members who have obtained their discharges from the armed forces.

Edmonton Violinist Moves to Calgary

Patricia Norris, city violinist and teacher, and first-desk player in the Edmonton Philharmonic Society, has moved to Calgary and joined the staff of Mount Royal College. One of the most accomplished players developed here in recent years, she studied here and in London. As a soloist and orchestral player she has taken a prominent place in musical activities. Members of the Philharmonic have expressed regret at her departure.

DAVID ELSTON, President Edmonton College, Inc.
Edmonton, Alberta.

During his long experience as teacher in schools and colleges of Canada and the United States, Mr. David Elston, President of Edmonton College, Inc., has prepared literally hundreds of thousands of students for their life work. Late in the Nineteenth Century he taught public and high school subjects in Western Ontario, and after graduation from Canada's Greatest College of Commerce with full courses in Accounting, Law, Mathematics and Expert Handwriting, being medalist in Penmanship, he was placed directly with the Department of Commerce of one of the largest colleges of Washington. Mr. Elston returned to Canada in 1907 and upon arrival in Edmonton was appointed Director of Penmanship and Commercial Subjects by the first principal of Alberta College.

He has been engaged by the Crown to give expert evidence on handwriting relating to forged and disputed documents, and has been the only witness so retained on almost all the murder trials of Alberta during a great number of years, from the famous King murder trial to the more recent Pogmore and McLean trials at Red Deer and Vegreville. During five consecutive years his Penmanship students of Alberta College won the Gold Medal awards of the Penman's Art Journal and Business Journal of New York City, and courses in writing conducted by Mr. Elston for the schools of the Province were highly recommended by teachers and inspectors. During the course of the First Great War, Mr. Elston was appointed by the Federal Department of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment to prepare special finishing courses of office work for returned disabled men being trained in the S.C.R. schools established in Edmonton, Calgary and Frank.

Edmonton College, Inc., was established by Mr. Elston in 1921 and has never solicited nor received donations from any source. The Board of Edmonton College owns its beautiful grounds and buildings of the Sifton Estate, and is a boarding and day school giving instruction in Kindergarten courses and through the grades to matriculation. It employs a large staff of qualified teachers and gives courses in Music, Art, Dancing, Dramatics, Languages, Mathematics. The College is offering special Civil Service Mail Courses preparing boys and girls for Dominion Government appointments.

Classical, Modern Rhythms Possess Universal Appeal; City Classes Now Forming

By JOHN OLIVER

Dancing, both aesthetic, stage and ballroom is enjoying a vogue hitherto unapproached in its long history. Though associated with festivals and ceremonial occasions from the earliest times, dancing today has reached a new zenith.

CONDUCTOR. — Abe Fratkin, conductor of the Edmonton Philharmonic Society, who has commenced rehearsals for the new season, with the first of five concerts scheduled for next month.

It has become an integral part of normal life, not only in this city, but throughout Alberta, Canada, and the entire world. From the earliest times it has held a prominent place as one of the most popular forms of entertainment, healthful exercise and social intercourse.

In the celebrations attendant upon V-J Day provision was made for dancing. In almost every city, town and village, special preparations were made for dancing. Bands and orchestras played for street dancing, while at enclosed and covered places, dancing took its place in the forefront as a form of celebration.

The body, as well as the mind, feels the gladdening influence of the dance. No amusement seems more to have a foundation in the nature of the average person. The animation of youth overflows spontaneously in harmonious movements.

The true idea of dancing entitles it to favor. Its end is to realize perfect grace in motion, and who does not know that a sense of the graceful is one of the higher faculties of human nature.

REVEALS CHARACTER

Dancing is not merely something physical, and apart from the pupil's reactions to everyday life. Character is revealed in movement to an extraordinary degree. Meanness, arrogance, untidiness shyness, fear, self-indulgence, slyness, lack of discipline are all traits that are speedily revealed in the dance. And the dance can overcome them.

Dancing is a valuable asset in social life. If you are a good dancer you will be a welcome guest at parties wherever you go.

There are many types of dancing. French dancing for a long time, retained the graceful, flowing, non-virtuoso inspiration of the minuet, while the Italians, given to the more violent tarantella, developed the athletic aspect.

UNIVERSAL APPEAL

But whether one prefers the grace of French dancing or the technique of Italian, or the highly volatile types exemplified in the Russian school, dancing is a universal attraction.

Modern American dances and those from Latin-America, have won widespread approval, and these with the waltz, are the most popular today with the people as a whole.

Hand-in-hand with dancing goes general physical culture.

In the teaching of dancing and the development of physique generally, Edmonton studios are remarkably well-equipped, both as to facilities, and instructors.

Whether you want to learn to dance for pleasure and social activities, whether you desire to embark on a career of ballet or whether you desire to take physical culture to "keep in shape" your requirements can be met in city studios, as a glance at the schools represented on this page will evidence.

Miss Ethel McKenzie, a former member of the teaching staff of Edmonton public schools, will open a kindergarten and nursery school on September 10, at 11202 67 street. Classes will feature rhythmic games, songs, music appreciation, dramatization and a rhythm band.

Miss McKenzie, who recently returned from Washington, D.C., where she worked for a year on lend-lease, made a survey of similar schools in Philadelphia, Boston, New York and Washington.

The Bulletin's SPORT SHOW by Hal Dean

SPORTS EDITOR

WELL, signs seem to indicate the return of senior hockey to Edmonton after an absence of four seasons, and the exact set-up for this coming winter should be known immediately following the conclave called for Calgary this week-end.

The assembling of a senior club which will adequately represent this city will entail plenty of headaches for the gent ultimately chosen to do the masterminding, but at that, the job doesn't look at all hopeless.

Incidentally, the roster of the Flyers, the 1940-41 club and last to carry Edmonton colors, included Dave Pow and Gordon Robbins, Riley Mullin, Gordon Sherritt, Walter McIntyre, Joe Brown, Eddie O'Keefe, Pete Yanew, Bob Crossland, Les Bird, Ducky Skinner, Alex Watt, Joe Dutchak, Ab Newsome, Bob Haxby and Gordon Watt.

Ab Newsome, who along with Joe Dutchak, was the youngest of the squad, is in Edmonton now. Bob Crossland and Bob Haxby played in the Intermediate League last season and Joe Brown coached the Junior Canadians and turned out with the Vics two years ago and handled the South Side juniors last winter.

PLAYOFFS START WEDNESDAY

SECRETARY BILL HARRIS received confirmation by wire just yesterday morning from Bill Hansen, president of the Calgary Foothills League, as to dates for the senior baseball playoffs for the Alberta championship. The series will be a best-of-seven affair.

And so Yanks, who are scheduled to play the Arrow-Dodger all-star squad tonight will go back into action again next Wednesday with a second game on Thursday.

The Yanks, Edmonton titlists, will be presented with the Henry Birks trophy, emblematic of the senior championship here, during tonight's session with the Canadian All-Stars.

U.S. Signals will play a series with Fort Richardson, Alaska, in Edmonton next week-end, the first game being on Saturday, Sept. 15, and a doubleheader is billed for the following day. This will be the last senior ball here this season and the park will then be closed unless the Alberta title series goes beyond five games, in which event the Calgary champs and Yanks would return to Renfrew for Monday, Sept. 17, and if necessary, Sept. 18.

HERE AND THERE . . .

DIRECTORS of the Edmonton Exhibition Association appeared unanimous at the meeting held on Friday night that the junior game was not to suffer as result of the bringing in of senior hockey.

And, by the way, Canadian Athletic Club's hockey school will be opening at the Arena in another two weeks. And while officials of that organization have been ominously silent on the subject, the report is current that this year's club will be considerably stronger than last year's and quite likely to constitute a serious Memorial Cup threat.

Laurel Harney, former Edmontonian who has played a leading role in the organization of the Victoria end of the Western International Baseball League, has been invited to confer with Oakland Pacific Coast League club owners regarding a working agreement for next season.

Saskatoon Aces Play Here Tonight

Mortons and Army and Navy Pats are tied for the league leadership in the girls' division at Kingsway Fastball Park. Each club will try its best tricks this week-end against one of Saskatchewan's finest girls' fastball squads, the Saskatoon Aces. Tonight at Kingsway at 6:30 p.m., Ken McAuley will trot out his Morton players against the Aces and Sunday afternoon Clare Hollingsworth's Pats against the Aces at 2:30 o'clock.

This pair of games looms up as an interesting double feature event for Kingsway Park fans over the week-end.

Exhibition Association Moves to Acquire Stuart-Grove Interests

Fair Board Okays Senior Hockey Proposal

Will Seek Franchise In League

DIRECTORS of the Edmonton Exhibition Association Ltd., at a meeting held on Friday night, voted unanimous approval of a recommendation from the executive to acquire the senior hockey franchise rights of Ira Stuart and L. A. (Lefty) Grove.

Sanction of the city council is necessary before the deal can be consumated and this matter will be dealt with at the meeting on Monday night. In the meantime, however, and contingent upon the council's okay, a berth will be sought in the mooted western Canada senior circuit which it is expected will be launched at Calgary this week-end.

Charles E. Wilson, managing director of the Exhibition Association, W. G. (Bill) Harris, Ira Stuart and Lefty Grove will attend the meeting in Calgary called for the purpose of organizing the new league.

Saskatoon, Regina and Calgary, along with Moose Jaw and Lethbridge, in addition to Edmonton, have been invited to send delegates to this meeting, but it is generally believed that if a senior loop is formed, it will likely consist of the first three named cities and Edmonton.

Both Calgary and Saskatoon have been ready to go for some time, but nothing definite has come out of Regina so far, as to the exact situation in the Saskatchewan capital.

Flyers, members of the Alberta Senior Hockey League during the season of 1940-41 were the last club to represent Edmonton in the organized senior field. All equipment is also included along with franchise rights in the deal made between the Exhibition Board and Messrs. Grove and Stuart.

No steps have been taken as yet in connection with the securing of a hockey coach, but a committee suggested by the executive is all ready to function just as soon as the league is organized and approval of council obtained.

Make Minor Rule Changes

NHL Adopts 50-Game Schedule

MONTREAL, Sept. 8—(CP)—Governors of the National Hockey League ended their semi-annual session Friday after adopting the schedule for the coming year and completing working agreements and miscellaneous league problems.

The 50-game schedule, calling for the same number of games as in previous years, will be released for publication Sept. 18.

President Mervyn (Red) Dutton said returning servicemen while on discharge leave or leave of absence will be allowed to rejoin their teams.

The board of governors approved the recommendation of the management committee that teams be allowed to dress 14 players plus as many goalies as they want this season, compared with 13 players and a maximum of two goalies last year.

STILL NO OVERTIME

Playing rules, as drafted at the annual meeting of the league last June, were adopted without any important change. These included the abolition of the minor penalty shot, and the removal of the red line back of the goal line for the application of the penalty for "icing" the puck.

The abolition of overtime periods in regular schedule games was adhered to for another season in view of transportation difficulties.

President Dutton said for the first time in the history of hockey the rules as adopted by the NHL will now be standard in all organized hockey, whether professional or amateur.

NO COMMENT

Mr. Dutton declined to say whether any agreement had been reached with the Pacific Coast League, an amateur body formed last year comprising nine teams in Canadian and American cities on the Pacific coast. A representative of the PCL has been conferring with NHL officials in the course of the week but Mr. Dutton did not say what was the object of the discussions. It was believed however that the PCL was attempting to work out a protective "no-raiding" agreement.

Mr. Dutton likewise did not say whether any agreement had been arranged with the Quebec Senior Hockey League which announced at a meeting in August it would consider moving to professional ranks.

Governors present at the meeting were Senator D. Raymond and T. P. Gorman, of Montreal Canadians; Connie Smythe, Frank Selke and Happy Day, of Toronto Maple Leafs; Art Ross, of Boston Bruins; Lester Patrick and Frank Boucher, of New York Rangers; Bill Tobin, of Chicago Black Hawks, and Jack Adams of Detroit Red Wings.

Men's Singles Feature Friday's Tennis Matches

The city tennis tournament continued at the three courts—Garneau, Civil Service and Glenora—Friday evening, with two hard-fought matches in the men's open singles division highlighting the 15 games.

In what could easily be classed as an upset, Mort Watts eliminated Dave Kushner, finalist in the Civil Service tournament, in a match that went the full three sets. Kushner won the first 6-3 and then Watts evened things up in the next go by the same score. Both racquet swingers were cautious in the rubber set, but Mort finally won out 7-5.

Bob Werth, who teamed up with Bill Woodard to give Capt. Ray Gould and George Docherty a tough match Thursday night, was going strong in his game last night against George McFadzean, but folded in the deciding set and lost 6-0. Bob won the first 6-3, but dropped a real struggle in the second 10-8.

All matches, including today's games, will be played at the Glenora courts from now until the affair winds up. Some good matches are scheduled for today with the top seeded players in action against tough opposition.

Drill Again Sunday

Junior Football Workout Attracts Good Attendance

By CECIL GOLDSTICK

The young athletes of Edmonton—and there are plenty of them—proved conclusively last night they have enthusiasm for the gridiron. If any doubts of this existed they were squelched last night at Clarke Stadium when over 40 prospective footballers turned out for the first practice and workout of the season.

Both George Snowdon and Ken Henry, two men who are working hard to get the game going here, were on hand last night, and were more than pleased with the turnout. Both real boosters for junior sport, they gave the boys further encouragement by informing them of Calgary's desire to play a few games up here. The boys were urged to keep coming out to workouts and assured a big effort will be made to get games underway as soon as possible.

Paul Kirk, backfielder with the Minnesota Gophers in the "Big Ten" loop, before wearing the harness of Regina Roughriders and Edmonton Eskimos of the now defunct Western Conference, was out putting the young gridders through the paces. He, with the assistance of Jimmy Dean, former coach of the South Side juniors, and just recently discharged from the Royal Canadian Navy, had the boys take things easy for the first night.

A check of the equipment in the clubhouse at the Stadium found that there was more than expected, but additional gear will have to be rounded up to equip two full squads. Only equipment missing is what some of the boys themselves took home last year and did not return. However, it is anticipated all this will be brought back in a day or so.

The next practice is called for Sunday morning starting at 11 o'clock. Capt. Ray Arjo, coach of the U.S. Clippers last season, has been invited and agreed to come out to show the boys a few pointers. Ken McAuley, coach of last years Combines, also will be on hand as well as Kirk and Dean.

All boys interested are urged to attend this drill at Clarke Stadium.

Newhouser Rejoins Tigers To Shutout Yankees 5-0

NEW YORK, Sept. 8—(AP)—Lefty Hal Newhouser trotted his sore back muscle out to the mound in Yankee Stadium Friday—and for the sake of Detroit's American League pennant hopes, it wouldn't be at all bad if all the Tigers twirlers had the same ailment.

The slim southpaw, who has been sidelined since last Saturday, came back from the doctors to serve a four-hit dish for a 5-0 decision over the Yankees.

The Hess Flight: First Story From Inside the Axis

Trip Not Prearranged, Says Ciano; Germany Jarred to Its Roots

Copyright, 1945, by The Chicago Daily News, Inc., and The Edmonton Bulletin
All rights reserved for all countries, including right of translation.

Jan. 1 - May 16, 1941.

Count Ciano, Mussolini's son-in-law, wrote into his intimate diary the first account to come from inside the Axis of the strange flight of Rudolph Hess, Hitler's trusted deputy who parachuted into Scotland in May, 1941.

Ciano made it abundantly clear that it was no prearranged trip and that it jarred Nazi Germany to the heart of the Reichschancellery. Its immediate result was to send Foreign Minister Ribbentrop scurrying to Rome before Hess could spill German plans in London. Ciano was astonished chiefly at the failure of Anglo-Americans to exploit the incident.

For three months early in 1941 Ciano was with a bomber group operating from Bari. He recorded such political gossip as the fact that King Victor's cousin, the Duke of Spoleto, was sought for 24 hours and finally found in the company of a young woman in a Milan hotel before he could be told he had been chosen "King of Croatia," the Axis puppet established after the defeat of Yugoslavia.

Ciano wrote:

JAN. 3—"Prince Hesse (German prince and son-in-law of King Victor) [illegible] know in the name [illegible] been more [illegible] cent true."

JAN. 5—"Since 4 p.m. yesterday the Bardia (Libya) radio has been silent (Bardia was attacked Jan. 3. The garrison of more than 20,000 surrendered after 20 days). . . . Is this still a case of the flea and the elephant? 'A peculiar flea,' says Mussolini, 'with more than a thousand guns at its disposal.'

"I telegraphed Alfieri (ambassador in Berlin) to request a meeting of Hitler and Mussolini. Up to now, Mussolini [illegible] would prefer not to meet Hitler until some of these failures have been erased."

JAN. 7—"The collapse of Bardia has shaken public morale again. Mussolini says this is a wetting that will take a week to dry."

JAN. 11—"Yesterday's news of the air and sea battle perhaps was exaggerated. We cannot as yet establish whether the British carrier was [illegible] rier Illustrious, a battleship and a [illegible]

JAN. 13—"The movement begins (of German troops into Bulgaria, although Bulgaria did not sign the Rome-Berlin-Tokyo pact until March 1 and the occupation began officially the following day). The approach of the Germans already suggests that the tempo of events is about to quicken."

JAN. 19—"The King . . . said he considers the Greek situation ended with the German descent into Thrace. . . . Il Duce . . . conferred with Cavallero (chief of the general staff). 'Greece,' says Mussolini, 'was a political masterpiece. We succeeded in isolating the country and in compelling it to fight alone. But the Italian Army failed us completely.'

DICTATORS MEET: HITLER IS ANTI-RUSS

JAN. 18-21—"Departure for Salzburg. Mussolini arrives deeply concerned [illegible] . . . He keeps repeating, 'If anyone had prophesied on Oct. 25 what has actually happened since, I would have had him shot.'

"Hitler and his chiefs of staff are waiting for us on the platform . . . The meeting is cordial . . . there are no veiled condolences.

"Mussolini says he found a very anti-Russian Hitler, loyal to us, and undecided about Great Britain. There is no longer any question of invasion. Hitler said the undertaking would be extremely difficult and could not be attempted a second time, if it failed the first.

[illegible] ks for two hours [illegible] satisfactory. . . . To us is assigned the difficult task of bringing home [illegible] Mussolini is downhearted on his return as he always is after meeting with Hitler."

JAN 22 — Tobruk has fallen. There has been a little fighting, but only a little . . . In Albania, Cavallero is preparing an offensive. I wait with faith, but little illusion.

"I have given Il Duce a grave and angry letter from Prof. Faccini of Leghorn, whose 18-year old son was mobilized Jan. 17 and sent to Albania the same day without learning what a gun was. This explains many things."

JAN 25 [illegible] alarmed about the course of events. [illegible] to gossip and small talk, especially about defeats, and has no sense of [illegible]

APRIL 24—"The attitude of the [illegible]

The Germans practically have assumed the air of protectors of the Greeks. An incident almost occurred between soldiers of the Casale division and SS troops of Hitler's [illegible]

APRIL 28—"Tsolakoglu's story pleases me less and less. Anfuso says it is a question of recognizing a government which has full approval of the religious authorities. Even under Axis occupation, it is clear that the general proposes to save the ethnic and national unity of Greece. What is also clear is secret German connivance (with Tsolakoglu)."

MAY 8—"Acquarone (minister and adviser to the Italian royal family) says that the Duke of Spoleto is proud of the task that awaits him but concerned about losing his liberty. THE HESS CASE: CIANO IS SKEPTICAL

[illegible]

"Von Ribbentrop arrives suddenly in Rome. He [illegible] and nervous. . . . The official version [illegible] that Hess, sick in mind and body, was a victim of pacifist hallucinations and went to Britain to begin peace negotiations. Hence he is not a traitor. Hence he will not talk. Hence, whatever is said or printed in his name is false. The conversation is sewn with white thread.

"The Nazis want to put their hands forward before Hess speaks and reveals things that will make a deep impression on the [illegible] comforted Ribbentrop, but told me afterwards that he considers the Hess affair a tremendous blow to the Nazi regime. He added that he was glad, because this will reduce the German stock."

MAY 14 — "The British radio says that Hess spends his time writing, which disturbs Ribbentrop. When Ribbentrop's four-motored plane was taking off, Bismarck (Nazi minister) said to Anfuso (Ciano's secretary), 'Let's hope they all fall and break their necks, but not here or we'll have an unpleasant day's work to do.'

"In the meantime things are not going as they should in Japan, and they are still worse in Russia. Ribbentrop [illegible] by Il Duce, avoided a definite reply and said that if Stalin is not careful Russia will be destroyed in three months. The chief of staff (Roatta) says on the basis of information gathered in Budapest that the attack has already been decided, and will begin June 15, with Hungary and Romania co-operating. . . . The story of Napoleon repeats itself." (The attack started June 22.)

BERLIN IN CONFUSION OVER HESS' FLIGHT

MAY 15—"Contrary to expectations, Anglo-American propaganda about the Hess case is relatively [illegible] The [illegible] documents are the German dispatches, confused and uninformative. Alfieri writes that confusion in Berlin is at its height."

Editor's note: Alfieri, it was disclosed later, took the initial German communique seriously and "practically broke his neck" sending condolences to Hitler on the loss of his [illegible] Germany [illegible]

MAY 16—[illegible] Hess case [illegible] the British press mentions a mysterious possession implying a prearrangement between [illegible] and Hess. This is in sharp contrast with Ribbentrop's declarations, and [illegible] German nervousness, which is [illegible]

Your Baby And Mine

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

The lot of a child who looks older than he is, is not always an enviable one. He tends to go with children who are as big as he is, but older, and is therefore the victim of their aggression, and unable to defend himself against it.

Children of all ages may play together with benefit, but if a child is timid, or unable to stand on his own feet, he may be better off with children who are slightly younger than himself until he gets more self-confidence. In such company he gets more opportunities to lead instead of being the constant "follower" and the one who is put upon.

Mrs. M. says her boy of 5 is as tall as the average 7-year-old. "He is very thin and the doctor says he is growing up instead of out. He is rough and full of pep, but he cries over anything. The boys in the neighborhood know this and pick on him all of the time.

"I try to tell him that they would leave him alone if he would hit back, but he says he is afraid. He comes home crying time after time. Even the mothers in the neighborhood chase him home. I suppose he annoys them, too.

"I don't know whether this is a health problem or if he has to be taught to be brave. His father is in the Navy and there are no men around. I have thought of going to the neighborhood mothers about this but doubt if it would help. I really do not know how to cope with this."

For one thing it sounds as if he played away from home most of the time. Why not invite one or two boys of similar ages, or younger, to play at your house? You might then discover what it is he does, or what they do, that causes the conflict.

In general a child who practices with a punching bag or wrestles with men, gets the idea of how to defend himself. He needs to be convinced—by a trial—that if he shows fight he will be left alone. Even if he has to fight, it won't hurt as badly as being left out, "picked on" or chased away.

Don't consult the mothers. These are children's problems best solved by children themselves.

Our leaflet, "Children's Quarrels," may be had by sending a stamped self-addressed envelope with this request to Myrtle Meyer Eldred in care of this newspaper.

DUAL PURPOSE CLOSET—You can brighten up a dark closet and make it serve a dual purpose as a dressing nook with the clever use of bright shelving paper, as illustrated above. Ordinary cardboard hat boxes are trimmed with gay Sunday Stroll figures shown in the sample blow-up at the bottom of the sketch. An inexpensive mirror and home-made shelf can be edged with the same motif to give you a convenient spot to primp.

Minute Make-Ups

Does your powder "flake", no matter what you do? Avoid flaking by using a few drops of cosmetic oil patted over your skin. Then blend on foundation cream. Stroke and pat 'till the skin is velvet-soft. Press on your face powder generously, then give it the "brushoff". No more "flakiness"!

DOROTHY DIX SAYS:

Parent Errs in Doubting Good Faith of Offspring

Girl Asks Why Should Her Mother Fail to Trust Her When She Has Never Done Anything in Her Life That Was Wrong

DEAR MISS DIX: My boy friend, who is a sailor, is home on a short furlough. The other night we went out together and had a flat tire and didn't get in until late. Not very late at that. I told my mother just exactly what happened, but she doesn't believe me and has forbidden me to see him any more.

This boy and I have known each other for over three years and we love each other. He will be leaving soon, going back to his duty, and I may never see him again, so this may be the end. If anything should happen to him, I will hate my mother as long as I live.

I have never done anything in my life that was wrong. Why should my mother fail to trust me?

X.X.X.

MISTRUST IS INJURIOUS

ANSWER: I get many letters from girls who tell me that their mothers don't trust them and accuse them of doing things that they never dreamed of doing. It cuts these youngsters to the quick to know that their mothers have so little faith in them. And as I read these pitiful little missives that are often tear-stained I wonder that any grown-up woman should have so little knowledge of human nature as not to know that the strongest hold that she can have upon her children is for them to feel that she trusts them.

For that puts them upon their honor. It makes them responsible for what they do. Parents can't go with their children wherever they go. They can't watch them all the time, so spying on them does no good. But if the boys and girls know that Mom and Pop trust them to behave themselves decently, it is not often that they fail to do so. They won't let them down.

A child feels just as much insulted by being called a liar as a grown-up does, and parents make a great mistake in accusing one of not being truthful unless they have absolute knowledge that he or she is telling a falsehood. Even then it is better to try to build up in the youngster's mind an ideal of the honor and respect that goes to the person whose word is his bond than to punish him for not being trustworthy. And the same applies to girls. There is no way to keep a girl good like making her believe that you think her incapable of not living up to your ideal of her.

YOUNG STUDENT

DEAR MISS DIX: I am a young high school student. A boy who is going into the service soon insists on my marrying him. Says he wants to make sure I will be waiting for him when he comes back. When I said I was too young to get married and that I wanted to go through college he said that I could do that even though we were married.

I think I love him but I don't know whether I do or not. How can I make him understand that I think it is better to wait without making him angry?

COOKIE

ANSWER: Well, Cookie, if you will take my earnest advice you will put something on the front of the stove besides a marriage license to stew along for the next few years while the boy is going overseas and you are going to college. Otherwise you are liable to have a dish that will be a terrible mess and for which both you and he will have lost your appetites.

You see these boy and girl marriages that seem so romantic at the time are not panning out very well. The lonesome homesick lad begs the girl to marry him because he wants to feel that somebody will be waiting for him, and the girl promises to do it because she is so sorry for him going so far away.

But the trouble is that so often she doesn't wait. She is young and pleasure-loving and she gets bored sitting at home with Papa and Mama and she begins stepping out with other lads. And the boy isn't so lonesome as he thought he was going to be. He finds plenty of girls to dance around with. And the boy and girl only too often recover from their attack of puppy love and fall in love with somebody else. Of course, this doesn't always happen, but it happens often enough to make the boy and girl marriages crowd the dockets of the divorce courts.

So put off getting married until after the war. Play safe. If you still love each other, fine. But if you are free to marry someone else, it is also fine.

WAR PLANT

DEAR MISS DIX: We are girls working in a war plant. Married men older than us ask us for dates and when we give them they make our work easier for us. Should we let the old fogies spend their money on us when their families need it?

ANSWER: No. Don't sell yourselves so cheaply. Treat other women's husbands as you would like young girls to treat your husbands some day.

Points for Parents

By EDYTH THOMAS WALLACE

Mother: "You children don't have to think alike about everything. What you're disagreeing about isn't very important, is it?"

Mother: "Come here and let me settle this quarrel. [illegible] I think you're in the wrong, Bill."

Son: "You always take Amy's part."

Sometimes both adults and children need to learn it is not necessary to settle every quarrel and that it's possible to disagree without being disagreeable.

TO PACK A DITTY BAG

Assemble the following, or similar articles on a table: tomato or apple juice, pork and beans or spaghetti with cheese and tomato sauce, tin of peaches or other fruit, a small Christmas cake or tin box of cookies, a tie, handkerchief or sox, shaving cream, or soap, tooth brush and tooth paste, comb, razor and blades, metal mirror, writing pad, envelopes, pencil, small note book, oxo cubes, hard candy or chocolate bars packed in a tin, chewing gum, cigarettes, playing cards, a novel or couple of new Digests, a "housewife" containing needles and thread, pins, mending wool and bandaids, also a small towel. Be sure and enclose a card or letter of greeting.

Lay the empty bag on a table. Put the three tins lengthwise in the bottom, slip the small articles in every crevice, add other articles keeping the bag flat and smooth. Be sure all food is in tins. Omit anything breakable or that will attract mice. If tooth powder is sent instead of tooth paste be sure that it is well wrapped as it frequently breaks and is scattered all through the bag. If soap is included be sure it is a mild variety as stronger soap taints the contents of bag. Be sure to attach a list of contents as this is important for reasons of safety. Please pack bags full as one completely filled bag is better than two partially filled ones.

If Miss Sherman had attempted to play today's hand at six spades, she probably would have been defeated. While she held seven spades and only four hearts, she was correct in bidding the slam in hearts.

The opening spade lead was won with the jack and two rounds of trumps were taken. Miss Sherman then cashed two rounds of spades, discarding two diamonds from dummy. Now the losing diamond could be ruffed and all West could make was the queen of hearts. At spades a diamond and a heart would probably have been lost.

EGGS DO SOMETIMES HAVE SQUARE CORNERS

To the average joker a square-cornered egg is only something to make fun about it, but the truth is that there are some square-cornered eggs laid by certain animals. An example which is well known to every biologist is the egg of the dogfish shark. Their eggs are square or oblong, with short tails at each of the four corners, and are covered with a hard, horny shell for protection. They are sometimes washed ashore along the ocean beaches of New England and Northern Europe, and most people who pick them up do not know what they are, for they would never imagine a square-cornered object to be an egg.

CUSTOM MADE SHIELDS.—Dress shields are guardians of good grooming and should be used in addition to anti-perspirants. But how to shield without showing your protectors poses many problems with the new bobbed sleeves many of which are nothing more than caps. The answer is to cut your shield to fit each sleeve, such as a demi-shield or half circle tacked in at the armhole. In buying one of the three sizes keep this in mind—if you perspire discreetly choose a small size, but if you exude much moisture, choose the larger, and don't choose according to dress size.

Enid Lofts Pledges Vows

White gladioli, asters and sweetpeas decorated Holy Trinity church for the wedding on Friday at 7:30 p.m. when Miss Enid Isobel Lofts, daughter of Robert W. Lofts of Edmonton and the late Mrs. Lofts, became the bride of Kenneth Lord Crockett, son of Walter M. Crockett, KC, and Mrs. Crockett of Edmonton. The Rev. Canon W. M. Nainby performed the ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a gown of white satin fashioned with a full skirt and a fitted bodice having a sweetheart neckline and three-quarter-length sleeves with which were worn white lace mittens. White satin rosettes trimmed the bodice at the neckline and her long veil was held in place with gardenias. She carried a colonial bouquet of pink roses and pink and white sweetpeas. Her only jewelry was a filigree necklace, a gift of the bridegroom from India.

ATTENDS BRIDE

Bridesmaid was Miss Margaret Crockett, who wore a salmon pink sheer gown made on similar lines as the bride's gown, a pink net chapel veil held in place with sweetpeas and she carried a colonial bouquet of carnations and sweetpeas.

Best man was R. R. Dutka of Wainwright, and ushers were George Arnett, brother of the bridegroom, and Kenneth Lofts, brother of the bride.

Mrs. Merle Clark of Jasper, sister of the bride received with Mrs. Crockett, the bridegroom's mother, who wore a black crepe frock trimmed with sequins, a black sequin hat and a corsage of gladioli.

RECEPTION

After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bridegroom's parents, where the rooms were a profusion of gladioli and other summer garden flowers. The bride's table was centred with a three-tiered wedding cake flanked with white tapers and low vases of sweetpeas.

GHURKA KNIFE

The bride cut the wedding cake with a Ghurka knife brought home by the bridegroom from India. Mrs. George Arnett and Mrs. Kenuth Lofts assisted at the reception and Canon Nainby proposed the toast to the bride. Nurses of the class of 1945 of the University hospital served.

Later the couple left for a honeymoon at Jasper and Banff, the bride travelling in a beige dress, brown topcoat and brown accessories. Upon their return the couple will make their home in Edmonton.

The bride is a graduate of the University hospital and will attend the University of Alberta and take her degree in Arts. The bridegroom, a former officer in the RCAF and attached to the RAF for two years in India, will resume his course in Arts and Law at the university. He is a member of the Zeta Psi fraternity.

Here are a few hints on how to get the most out of what coal you can get. First, of course, is to make sure your heating equipment is in the best possible condition. Next [illegible] fire your furnace so as to secure more heat and less waste from your fuel quota. And last, but far from least, is "do it now!"

Gt. Britain May Pay Cash For Supplies from Canada Commons Is Told by Ilsley

OTTAWA, Sept. 8.—(CP) — Recent discussions with Lord Keynes, advisor to the British treasury, indicate the United Kingdom will be able to pay in Canadian dollars for goods she receives from Canada in the next few months, Finance Minister Ilsley reported to the Commons yesterday.

Mr. Ilsley said there had been no immediate attempt to devise arrangements or negotiate terms for financing trade with Britain and other sterling countries over the whole transition period.

"Full discussion of that problem must be deferred until later," Mr. Ilsley said. "Our conversations have so far been confined to the problems that will exist over the next few months until more definite agreements can be worked out.

TO FINANCE NEEDS

"Fortunately it appears that, as a result of the settlements still to be made in respect of [illegible] transactions, as well as the continuing expenditures of the Canadian forces overseas, Britain and the sterling area will be receiving sufficient Canadian dollars during the next few months to finance all or nearly all their requirements in Canada.

"Consequently, we anticipate that the question of providing for a deficit will not arise during the interim period. If there should be a small deficit, it might be covered by simply postponing for a few months payment by the United Kingdom or other sterling

Asks for Mercy In Repentance

In the Jewish Calendar which is dated from the creation of the world, the year 5706 opened at sunset on Friday night, Sept. 7, and Jews all over the world prepared themselves by repentance to receive the judgment of God. "Rosh Hashanah" means "head of the year" and is the name given by the Jewish people to this two-day period of prayer and contrition.

Jewish people believe that in the 10 days between "Rosh Hashanah" and Yom Kippur, Day of Atonement, sunset, Sept. 16, God passes judgment on mankind, and prayers are said for the whole world that God's judgments may be merciful and that peace and prosperity may reign for the coming year, according to Rabbi Abraham Postone, 10356 93 street.

FOR AWAKENING

When Rosh Hashanah does not fall on a Saturday, the Jewish Sabbath, services in the synagogues are opened by the blowing of the Shofar or Rams Horn, to awaken men to repentance. This year the Shofar will not be blown until Sunday morning.

The services will be held as follows: Saturday, 8 a.m. and 8 p.m.; Sunday, 8 a.m.; Sunday, Sept. 16, 7:30 p.m.; Monday, Sept. 17, 8 a.m.

Son of Three Hills Couple Liberated

The Rev. and Mrs. Clifford Theodore Paulson, former residents of Edmonton, now living at Three Hills, received information Friday that their 11-year-old son has been freed after five years in a Japanese prison camp.

Mr. Paulson said that Friday was the first time they had received any word from him for more than a year and they did not know that he was even alive for sure. The last message they had from him, through the Red Cross, he was ill from lack of food, this message came in 1944 from the Keihsien internment camp in Chantung province.

The son, Phillip Timothy Paulson, was taken prisoner while attending school in the Chantung province in northern China. His parents were in the Kiangsi province at the time, doing missionary work, the Japanese did not get as far as this province.

Phillip, who was born at Innisfail in 1934, left the same year to go to China with his parents.

The Paulsons have three other children, Elaine, eight, Keith, five, and Blake, three. These three were born in China, the two youngest have never seen their older brother Phillip.

REDUCE CONSUMPTION

In opening the meeting, Walter S. Campbell, prices and supply representative of the board, and chairman of the gathering, said that the new meat rationing regulations would reduce the per capita consumption of meat from 149 to 135 pounds a year in Canada.

Canada's meat commitments to Europe make the rationing of meats imperative, Mr. Campbell said, asking for co-operation with the government by dealers and consumers alike.

R. Golding, assistant meat officer explained the new slaughtering regulations to the meeting, pointing out in answer to questions that farm beef rings cannot slaughter without permit and that butchers may not accept meat directly from farmers.

L. W. Sadler, assistant Prices and Supply representative, was also present and answered questions from meat dealers.

Claims Watches Used by Airmen Were Destroyed

CALGARY, Sept. 8—(CP)—Arthur Wray, Alberta MLA for Banff-Cochrane, charged in a speech before the Trades and Labor Council here last night that "Air Force wrist watches worth $105 each . . . were put on a bench and smashed with a sledge hammer."

Mr. Wray did not say where or when the destruction took place.

"Main gears were taken out of air force wrist watches worth up to $105 each. The gears were sent back to the manufacturers as evidence that the watches were dismantled and therefore useless. Then the watches minus the gears were put on a bench and smashed with a sledge hammer.

MELTED WITH TORCH

"But it was found that some of the men were salvaging pieces from the remains, so the air force then laid the remainder of the watches to be destroyed on a bench, and a man went down the line of watches with an acetylene torch, melting each watch into a lump of metal. That is how a number of air force watches have been disposed of."

He gave the council the sequence of events leading up to the recent air force investigation into his charges that much valuable equipment had been destroyed at Penhold, charges which he said were largely substantiated by Air Minister Gibson's subsequent statement.

On the motion of Ald. R. T. Alderman, the council voted to ask its executive to take the matter of destruction of equipment into consideration, and report to the next meeting of the council.

Nazi War Criminal Claimed in Attack On Prison Guard

NEURNBERG, Sept. 7—(AP)—One of the principal Nazi war criminal defendants being held for trial here attacked his guard in a city jail cell, and a psychiatrist was called from Paris to examine the Nazi, who was not identified, a security officer reported last night.

He said the attack occurred when the prisoner refused to obey an order from the guard, then attacked the guard.

"It was strictly a one-punch fight, though, because the guard took good care of himself," the officer said.

The major defendants, including remnants of the Hitler hierarchy, are in solitary confinement under constant surveillance. Previously jailers termed conduct of the prisoners as "correct."

Gt. Britain May Pay Cash For Supplies from Canada Commons Is Told by Ilsley

OTTAWA, Sept. 8.—(CP) — Recent discussions with Lord Keynes, advisor to the British treasury, indicate the United Kingdom will be able to pay in Canadian dollars for goods she receives from Canada in the next few months, Finance Minister Ilsley reported to the Commons yesterday.

Mr. Ilsley said there had been no immediate attempt to devise arrangements or negotiate terms for financing trade with Britain and other sterling countries over the whole transition period.

"Full discussion of that problem must be deferred until later," Mr. Ilsley said. "Our conversations have so far been confined to the problems that will exist over the next few months until more definite agreements can be worked out.

TO FINANCE NEEDS

"Fortunately it appears that, as a result of the settlements still to be made in respect of past transactions, as well as the continuing expenditures of the Canadian forces overseas, Britain and the sterling area will be receiving sufficient Canadian dollars during the next few months to finance all or nearly all their requirements in Canada.

"Consequently, we anticipate that the question of providing for a deficit will not arise during the interim period. If there should be a small deficit, it might be cov can be used where they stand, others could be moved at little cost, or dismantled and moved at a reasonable cost, to provide the shelter necessary for a community centre.

As a constructive suggestion to public spirited individuals in all communities, I would advise them to consider the possibility of obtaining suitable buildings from the War Assets Corporation (this could be easily arranged through the provincial authorities who have a priority claim on them) and turning them into community recreation centres. It should be possible to obtain these buildings for practically nothing and any labor required could be provided by community effort.

COULD USE CENTRE

From my experience I would say that each and every community could use such a centre to advantage. It could contain a gymnasium which would provide an opportunity for all the young people in the community (and the older ones as well) to get proper exercise, to play games, to box and wrestle. It [illegible] person it could be the centre where all sports activities were organized, dramatic classes and activities undertaken, are displays arranged, musical recitals organized. There is no limit to the valuable things it could contribute to the welfare of the community.

PAY FOR ITSELF

As far as the cost of operation is concerned, the snack bar would help, so would the dance floor, so would the lending library. Physical education classes could be made to contribute nominal sums, and the various facilities of the centre could be made to pay for itself, and any shortages could be made up either by grants from the civic governments or by public subscription. At any event any money spent in organizing such a community project would be returned a hundredfold in civic betterment.

Any persons who are interested should start working now before the bull-dozers or the termites get the building your community needs.

All former employees of Union Oil have been invited to join the staff of B-A Oil.

POST-WAR PLANS

Mr. Miller, in his statement, said the expansion of British-American Oil to the west coast implements one phase of the company's post war plans.

"The large marine terminal storage and excellent harbor facilities now afforded will place the company in a position to participate actively in the export market which the company anticipates will continue to develop."

He added that the Lulu Island refinery site on the Fraser River near Steveston would enter the picture.

When expansion is possible, British Columbia and Alberta would have the same consideration as the rest of Canada, Mr. Miller said. New retail outlets, better service and more modern facilities were planned from coast to coast.

New, Brighter Era for Children From Health Developments of War

By DR. G. M. LITTLE

City Medical Officer of Health

Our children are going back to school — the first school-term after six years of war. Despite the grief and hardship which touched many families during those war years, it may be the source from which develops a new and brighter era for this young generation. If only we can read the hard lessons which have been presented to us during those years!

[illegible] illness; but have you [illegible] your physician as to the possibility of preventing perhaps that very same illness?

Have you sought his advice periodically to make sure your boy or girl is developing properly, with no hidden defect to cause permanent damage before it becomes apparent to your unskilled eye? So frequently we may trace a damaged heart back to a childhood ailment which seemed so trifling to parents at the time.

These statements need not cause you to worry—for the safeguard lies within your reach.

MANY PAMPHLETS

Many sources of health information are open to parents. For instance, despite all the official pamphlets and information published in our newspapers, have you studied these enough to know if your child is receiving a diet which will permit him to build a sound and healthy body? It is important. We are made of what we eat. Just as surely as it is impossible to make a good pie with poor ingredients, you cannot make a sound and healthy child without the proper foods with which to build.

At school your child has close contact with many children from many homes. Communicable disease in any one of these homes may find its way to him. Here again the safeguard lies within your reach, for we have an effective protection against the most serious of these diseases.

Vaccination against smallpox, and inoculations against diphtheria, whooping cough and scarlet fever are so safe and so simple, and so readily available, that there can be little excuse for neglecting to safeguard your child. One of the most sorrowful moments in my experience occurred only four years ago in our own city. It was to hear a mother, whose eight-year-old boy had just died of diphtheria, explain to me that she had fully intended having him protected against this disease, but had just not gotten around to having it done.

NEW THREAT

Medical authorities are concerned over a new threat in connection with diphtheria, of which I must warn you. The first extensive outbreak on this continent of a very deadly type of diphtheria occurred in Halifax since the war began. It is called the "Gravis" strain of the germ. This strain appeared to originate in Germany. Many of our boys are now returning from Germany, and while they themselves are inoculated against the disease, they may act as carriers of the germ, and bring it home to their family and friends. It is especially urgent that we maintain the protection of our children at this time. Your inoculation clinic on the sixth floor of the Civic block operates every business day of the year. Neuritis is a term referring to inflammation of a nerve. Fortunately, in most cases of so-called neuritis, instead of this serious inflammation being present, the condition is one of toxic irritation of the nerve trunks.

The chief symptom of ordinary neuritis is pain, and the painful sensation may be so severe that the patient avoids all movement. Generally, the pain is described as stabbing, boring, burning or darting in nature.

Usually the neuritis localizes in only one nerve, but with the passage of time, several nerves may be involved. The latter condition is called polyneuritis or multiple-neuritis. The nerves most commonly affected are those in the arms and legs.

The symptoms observed in neuritis depend to some extent upon which kind of nerve is affected. If the motor nerve is the one involved, then the patient will complain of loss of the power of movement, or weakness. If a sensory nerve is involved, the patient may complain that the part controlled by the nerve has a tendency to become numb, to tingle, itch, or the patient reports the sensation that ants are crawling on the skin, or a sensation of pain. In some instances, certain skin changes are noted and the skin becomes thin and shiny, due to an involvement of the nerves controlling the neutrition of the spin.

In some cases, neuritis may be traced to a deficiency of vitamin B, which substance is necessary in the body for the normal nutrition and functioning of the nerves. When neuritis is due to the vitamin being lacking, then the taking of an abundance of the vitamin will bring relief. It is extremely interesting to note that the one who uses an excess of carbohydrates must take in a greater supply of vitamin B1 than the one who does not use varbohydrates so plentifully.

It has been my experience that neuritis is most likely to develop in those using the carbohydrates freely and perhaps part of the explanation lies in the fact that although these patients use an extra amount of carbohydrates, they do not increase the vitamin intake which such a practise makes necessary.

While the use of heat will be found satisfactory in relieving the pain due to neuritis, complete relief depends upon finding the cause and removing it. Although abscessed teeth or diseased tonsils may serve as contributing causes, I do not regard them as primary causes.

All questions regarding health and diet will be answered. Large stamped, self addressed envelope must be enclosed. Write on one side of paper only. Letters must not exceed 150 words. Address McCoy Health Service, The McCoy Building, 1151 West 6th Street, Los Angeles, Calif.
